PROF. GEORGES CLAUDE of Paris, inventor of synthetic ammonia, and a serious scientist, tells the French Academy of Science that he has found a cheap, efficient way to harness the ocean's tide power.

It is a complicated process, depending on ultilization of the ocean's temperatures, varying at different depths. The main thing is that such an invention would supply the one thing that men need above all others, power unlimited, cheap and forever.

WHEN your harness the tides you really harness the power of the moon, that with its constant pull of gravity, raises and lowers the ocean's water. Whether men are far enough advanced to deserve free power, use it well and not be made lazy by it, remains to be seen.

THERE arises a question of veracity between Marshal Foch and the King of Belgium. Foch says he persuaded King Albert not to let the Belgians retreat from the Yser. It is a fact that the king issued a proclamation, making any suggestion of retreat treason.

THE king says Foch had nothing to do with it. The general public will trust to Foch's memory. Kings have a license to forget that is not permitted to commoners. Anyhow, but for Foch, and his management of the war, there wouldn't be any King Albert. Some young Hohenzollern would be sitting on the Belgian throne, nicely over-stuffed, to make it comfortable for him.

THE treasury surplus this year will be far above $250,000,000, thanks to good management by President Coolidge and Mr. Mellon. And if you are an income tax payer on a fairly big scale it means good news to you, a rebate of as much as 15 per cent on what you paid last year.

ABOARD QUEEN MARIE'S SPECIAL TRAIN (In Louisville, Ky.) Nov. 18. — Queen Marie of Roumania today cut short her triumphal tour of America when she received word that the days of King Ferdinand were numbered.

Transportation Obstacles.

The Balkan queen will take the first available liner that may carry her back to Bucharest where she may nurse her beloved monarch. It is planned at present for her to sail from New York on the Berengaria, November 24. She had previously expected to sail December 11.

Queen Marie is ready to return to Roumania immediately but transportation obstacles may delay her. The remainder of her American itinerary will be curtailed. It was undecided today whether she would set out for New York instantly and await the sailing of a suitable liner or if she would carry out the schedule as far as Detroit which would include a visit to Cincinnati.

JANE GIBSON TELLS STORY OF HALL-MILLS MURDER SCENE

Says She Recognized Rector's Wife and Her Brothers.

PLACED ON BED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18. — Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her two brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, were at the scene of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills on the night of September 14, 1922, Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, testified from a bed in the Somerset county courthouse today.

Testimony Creates Sensation.

Mrs. Gibson had been brought here in an ambulance from a Jersey City hospital and placed on a little white bed [illegible] of the jurors so that she could [illegible] her "eye-witness" story.

It was her first courtroom declaration that Henry Stevens was present at the murder scene and created a sensation. Henry Stevens clinched his hands over the arms of his chair.

When Mrs. Gibson asserted that she saw Mrs. Hall at the scene of the double murder, Prosecutor Alexander Simpson said to the defendant: "Will you please remove your hat?"

Mrs. Hall removed her black hat.

"Is that the woman you saw at the scene?" Simpson asked, his voice resounding through the courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson turned her towel-bandaged head and in a low but clear voice said:

"Yes, that is the woman I saw that night."

Mrs. Gibson then identified both Willie and Henry Stevens as the other two she saw at the scene of the murder.

"Have you any doubt as to their identity?" Simpson asked. Mrs. Gibson paused dramatically, and then said:

"I have absolutely no doubt."

Story of Fatal Night.

Prosecutor Simpson had asked Mrs. Gibson what she had seen in the lane on the fatal night after she had gone out on her Jenny mule in search of thieves who had been stealing her corn. Some time after 9 o'clock the barking of her dog quartered in the barn of her 61-acre farm, three miles from the scene, had caused her to

"I'VE GOT TO TELL WHAT I KNOW-AFTER THAT I DON'T CARE," SAYS WITNESS, IN DANGER OF DEATH, ON WAY TO HALL-MILLS MURDER TRIAL

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18.—"I'm all right—I'm going to be strong. Don't you worry about me. I've got to tell what I know of this case—after that I don't care."

These are the words of Mrs. Jane Gibson, who made a dramatic appearance in court here today as the state's star witness in the Hall-Mills murder trial. They were spoken to Police Inspector John J. Underwood, who with Captain Harry Walsh interviewed her in the Jersey City hospital where she has been seriously ill.

She came to the court house here this morning from Jersey City, 30 miles away, in an ambulance and against the advice of six doctors who have been attending her. They fear she might suffer a relapse which quite possibly could result in her death.

Overrules Doctor's Suggestions.

But she waved aside all suggestions that she remain in the hospital. She insisted she must come to Somerville and tell what she knows of the mysterious murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs Eleanor Mills. She is the only known "eye-witness" of the murders. She has identified the three defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, as the three persons she saw under the crab-apple tree in De Russey's lane on the night of Sept. 14, 1922. She is the state's vital witness.

It was feared a week or so ago that she would die and that her amazing story never would be told at the trial. Spectacular efforts were made by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson to have court transferred to her bedside in the hospital so that her testimony might be taken but the court advised a delay to see if her condition improved sufficiently to enable her to testify. Her progress, however, was very slow. She is suffering from a complication of diseases which, physicians say will ultimately result in her death. Only a few days ago she underwent a blood transfusion.

Excitement in Somerville.

The imminent appearance of Mrs. Gibson on the witness stand has figurately set Somerville on its ears. It is the one subject of conversation in this little town of 6,000 population. There was an undercurrent of suppressed excitement early today in the vicinity of the courthouse among the curious crowd waiting for the arrival of the ambulance bearing the famous witness.

Mrs. Gibson is taking all responsibility for leaving the Jersey City hospital. She willingly signed this statement:

"I, Jane Gibson, do hereby leave the Jersey City hospital of my own free will and do refuse further treatment against the advice of physicians and surgeons in charge and do also hereby release the said hospital from responsibility for any results which may follow such action on my part."

The ambulance which conveyed Mrs. Gibson from Jersey City to Somerville this morning also carried a doctor and a trained nurse. Preceding the ambulance was a motor car containing Inspector Underwood and two other police officials. They served as an advance guard of the ambulance. The trip was made slowly over the concrete roads.

A truck accompanying the ambulance carried a bed which will be set up in the courtroom. Lying in the bed, with a doctor and a nurse at her side, Mrs. Gibson will tell her story.

Racked with pain, Mrs. Gibson began the tedious journey with unflinching fortitude. The doctor and the nurse accompanied her, and Captain Walsh of the Jersey City police was in charge of the party.

Two motorcycle officers escorted the ambulance but rode in an automobile ahead. They discarded their motorcycles as doctors feared the noise of the machines would distract Mrs. Gibson.

The strange cavalcade proceeded slowly, to make the riding as smooth as possible.

Photographers were cautioned not to take any flashlight pictures of the state's star witness, and every precaution was taken to prevent other disturbances.

Story of Fatal Night.

Prosecutor Simpson had asked Mrs. Gibson what she had seen in the lane on the fatal night after she had gone out on her Jenny mule in search of thieves who had been stealing her corn. Some time after 9 o'clock the barking of her dog quartered in the barn of her 61-acre farm, three miles from the scene, had caused her to

"I'VE GOT TO TELL WHAT I KNOW-AFTER THAT I DON'T CARE," SAYS WITNESS, IN DANGER OF DEATH, ON WAY TO HALL-MILLS MURDER TRIAL

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18.—"I'm all right—I'm going to be strong. Don't you worry about me. I've got to tell what I know of this case—after that I don't care."

These are the words of Mrs. Jane Gibson, who made a dramatic appearance in court here today as the state's star witness in the Hall-Mills murder trial. They were spoken to Police Inspector John J. Underwood, who with Captain Harry Walsh interviewed her in the Jersey City hospital where she has been seriously ill.

She came to the court house here this morning from Jersey City, 30 miles away, in an ambulance and against the advice of six doctors who have been attending her. They fear she might suffer a relapse which quite possibly could result in her death.

Overrules Doctor's Suggestions.

But she waved aside all suggestions that she remain in the hospital. She insisted she must come to Somerville and tell what she knows of the mysterious murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs Eleanor Mills. She is the only known "eye-witness" of the murders. She has identified the three defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, as the three persons she saw under the crab-apple tree in De Russey's lane on the night of Sept. 14, 1922. She is the state's vital witness.

It was feared a week or so ago that she would die and that her amazing story never would be told at the trial. Spectacular efforts were made by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson to have court transferred to her bedside in the hospital so that her testimony might be taken but the court advised a delay to see if her condition improved sufficiently to enable her to testify. Her progress, however, was very slow. She is suffering from a complication of diseases which, physicians say will ultimately result in her death. Only a few days ago she underwent a blood transfusion.

Excitement in Somerville.

The imminent appearance of Mrs. Gibson on the witness stand has figurately set Somerville on its ears. It is the one subject of conversation in this little town of 6,000 population. There was an undercurrent of suppressed excitement early today in the vicinity of the courthouse among the curious crowd waiting for the arrival of the ambulance bearing the famous witness.

Mrs. Gibson is taking all responsibility for leaving the Jersey City hospital. She willingly signed this statement:

"I, Jane Gibson, do hereby leave the Jersey City hospital of my own free will and do refuse further treatment against the advice of physicians and surgeons in charge and do also hereby release the said hospital from responsibility for any results which may follow such action on my part."

The ambulance which conveyed Mrs. Gibson from Jersey City to Somerville this morning also carried a doctor and a trained nurse. Preceding the ambulance was a motor car containing Inspector Underwood and two other police officials. They served as an advance guard of the ambulance. The trip was made slowly over the concrete roads.

A truck accompanying the ambulance carried a bed which will be set up in the courtroom. Lying in the bed, with a doctor and a nurse at her side, Mrs. Gibson will tell her story.

Racked with pain, Mrs. Gibson began the tedious journey with unflinching fortitude. The doctor and the nurse accompanied her, and Captain Walsh of the Jersey City police was in charge of the party.

Two motorcycle officers escorted the ambulance but rode in an automobile ahead. They discarded their motorcycles as doctors feared the noise of the machines would distract Mrs. Gibson.

The strange cavalcade proceeded slowly, to make the riding as smooth as possible.

Photographers were cautioned not to take any flashlight pictures of the state's star witness, and every precaution was taken to prevent other disturbances.

Funeral Services Are Held For Old Time Fiddler Champ

Funeral services for Richard W. Buxton, 78, winner of The Review-Tribune's old time fiddlers' contest last March, who died in the City hospital Tuesday morning after several weeks' illness, were conducted in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Villee, 910 St. George street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. O. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, and Dr. J. G. Reinartz, of St. John's Lutheran church, were in charge. Burial was made in Riverview cemetery.

R. W. Buxton.

In the fiddlers' contest, Mr. Buxton was one of nearly a score of entrants not only from East Liverpool but also from Chester, Wellsville, Newell, Lisbon and Toronto. In addition to an engagement at the American theatre, he received a silver cup, furnished by Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer, through the Beers-Hanks Motor company, local Ford and Lincoln distributors.

He was born in 1848 in Washington county, Pa., about a mile from Patterson's Mill, the nearest postoffice. In 1872, at the age of 23, he and his wife and two children moved to the west, settling on a farm in the northern part of Missouri where he herded sheep and engaged in farming. Buxton had the distinction of being the only violinist in his neighborhood and often traveled 15 and 20 miles to play for dances.

The family lived in the west for about 35 years. About 21 years ago they came to East Liverpool where the husband and father followed the trade of carpenter until about four years ago.

Buxton regarded his violin as a companion. He began playing the fiddle when he was 10 years of age, taking lessons from a man who lived on a neighboring farm. The violin which he owned at the time of his death was made in Germany about 50 years ago.

Buxton, who made his home with his step-son, Dwight McBride, of Anderson boulevard, is survived by two sons and two daughters, David Buxton, Cleveland; Robert Buxton, Little Ferry, N. J., and Mrs. Anna Thomas, Cleveland, and Mrs. Margaret Villee, of this city.

Q. How many members has the Society of Friends? N. S.

Q. Can fresh reindeer meat be bought in the States? C. D.

A. Reindeer meat exported from Alaska this fall for consumption in the States will soon be on sale and the prices will be reasonable. One leading reindeer company in Alaska expects to export at least 5,000 carcasses, and will export more if vessels with refrigeration facilities can be obtained for shipping the meat from Nome to Seattle.

Q. Please give some information about the Oregon Trail. R. S. H.

A. The Oregon Trail was an emigrant route, about 2,000 miles long, from Indepence, Missouri, to the Columbia river. Originally it was made in part by the Indians and trappers. A part of it was blazed by Verendrye in 1742, and the expedition of Lewis and Clark in 1804 made more of it known. Others who helped to establish the trail were W. P. Hunt, Robert Stuart, S. H. Long, W. H. Ashley, Smith, Jackson, and Sublette. Nathaniel J. Wyeth made the first continuous overland trip on record in 1832.

Q. How do bees keep warm during the winter? N. W.

A. A temperature of about 60 degrees is maintained. The heat is produced by physical exercise, humming and buzzing. It behooves beekeepers to protect the bees, as over-activity uses up vitality.

Q. Is Karakul a fur taken from an animal of that name or is it a trade name? W. R.

A. Karakul is the fur of sheep known as Karakul. The Karakul sheep takes its name from Kara Kul (Black Lake) a village in the Eastern Vokhara, a province of central Asia. The skins of prematurely born lambs have value as fur, but the ewes are not socrificed to secure them.

Q. What does the stork signify when woven in Chinese rugs? T. A.

A. It is the emblem of longevity. The stork was thought to live to a fabulous age; at 600 years, being too old, it could only drink; and turned black after 1,000 or 2,000 years. A black stork in the design of the rug is particularly significant.

Why Have Gray Hair?

Don't think your hair need remain streaked with gray—or even very gray. For more than ten years, gray haired men and women, whose hair at one time was brunette, blonde, red, auburn, brown or black, have used Kolor-Bak with entire satisfaction, and are no longer gray.

Kolor-Bak is a clean, colorless liquid that has restored youthful appearance to hundreds of thousands. As easy to apply as water, it requires no experimenting with samples of your hair.

Just ask your dealer for Kolor-Bak. The one bottle is for all hair, no matter what shade or color. Results often appear in a week. And with the disappearance of the gray hair, the tonic properties of Kolor-Bak make it splendid to use for dandruff and falling hair. Its tremendous success is clearly shown by the sale of nearly 3,000,000 bottles, which proves its superiority.

Dealers everywhere sell Kolor-Bak with guarantee to return your money if it does not bring desired results. No excuse now for any woman to look old, or any man to be considered too old for employment. Your druggist, or any store where toilet goods are sold, carries Kolor-Bak. Ask for it today.

Is Your Child Thin and Weak?

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy, there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred per cent better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to insist on the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents at Mathews' Medicine Store, or any druggist. Thousands of boxes sold daily.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1926.

Shop Now, Mail Early

Christmas, bearing a message of good will, is but five weeks distant, Postmaster J. Edwin McClure reminds East Liverpool postal patrons today in suggesting the two-fold advantage in early mailing of Yuletide gifts.

In another column of today's Review-Tribune, the postoffice department calls attention to the importance of doing your Christmas mailing before the rush begins. Make certain that your parcels contain the complete address of the person for whom they are intended, and it is important all containers should be strong and durable. Otherwise they may go to the dead letter office.

The Christmas shopping season has opened. Holiday stocks are now on the shelves and in cases in East Liverpool's stores. Merchants and clerks are prepared to serve their patrons.

Prepare your gift list today. Then shop, wrap packages, post thereon the "Don't Open Until Christmas" suggestion, and mail at once. Clerks in stores and postoffices will appreciate your thoughtfulness, and the shopper and sender will avoid the confusion that inevitably results when Yuletide buying is deferred until the eleventh hour.

A Sage Prophesies

Thomas A. Edison, passing from inventive wizardry to prophecy, is always interesting. He has become the leading American sage. Here is his latest outgiving, as recorded by an interviewer in the Forum:

Cities in the future will be noisier than ever, but we shall become able to endure the racket by being mercifully deafened to it.

City traffic problems will be solved not by policemen but by engineers. There will be express streets and depressed cross streets.

Skyscrapers will be restricted because, by disgorging great masses of people at one time, they cause serious congestion of streets and transportation.

City roofs will be utilized as landing places for aircraft.

American cities sooner or later will tackle the problem of management as big business now does, and then there will be efficient city government.

Newspaper readers are probably familiar with all of these ideas. But it is reassuring to have the work of an eminent authority to support hopeful expectations.

The one novel suggestion is that regarding noise. Is there really no recourse for sensitive folk except deafness? Or cannot engineers soften and deaden the racket more and more hereafter, along lines already started?

Mr. Edison has probably allowed his own infirmity to color his thinking. He has regarded his own deafness as an asset, protecting him from hearing things he didn't want to hear. People who want to hear the pleasant sounds may yet overcome the unpleasant by direct attack instead of surrendering to them.

A Terrible Country

A speaker at a big gathering in Memphis told his associates that there was more money lost in the United States last year, as the result of crime, than the whole international war debt amounts to. He proceeded to give some other statistics along the same line, as follows:

"There are more divorces in this country every 11 days than there are in Great Britain in a year.

"There are six policemen killed in Chicago to every criminal who is killed.

"There are more criminals in the United States by 50,000 than there were soldiers in the combined armies at Waterloo."

Probably all true. And we might adduce just as striking statistics on the other side, to show what a decent, kindly, honest country this is—how many millions are given every year to charity, how many hundred thousand citizens serve in community compaigns, how many sober, law-abiding people there are doing their duty to God and man and taking fine care of their families, etc. But what's the use? One little question may suffice, not to condone the evil that America must plead guilty to, but to sum up and show the essential soundness of this land of contrasts:

Is there any other country in the world where the critics would rather live?

Discouraging Visitors

Not by a parliamentary law, but by an "order" issued by the secretary-general of the Fascist party, everybody in Italy is compelled to salute the Fascist banners by lifting the hat when then are carried through the streets in Blang Shirt processions.

"The order," says a cable from Rome, "is applicable to foreigners as well as to natives, and ignorance of it will not be considered an excuse for failure to heed it."

This is as if, in the United States, anyone who did not take off his hat to a Republican eagle or a Democratic rooster—according to which party was in power—when a political procession passed by should be thrown into jail.

That sort of thing may be all right for the Italian people. As for the rest of the world—people don't have to go to Italy. There are other countries where Americans can go and spend their money.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains— By Fontaine Fox

My Favorite Stories
By IRVIN S. COBB

JUST NATURALLY BOILING OVER

As they tell the tale along Broadway, Mr. Jack Dempsey, accompanied by his impresario, Mr. Jack Kearns, was in a subway crush when a husky stranger trod with emphasis on the former champion's toes and violently rammed a sharp elbow into his short-ribs.

The intent was obvious. It plainly was not carelessness. The other person had chosen deliberately to be offensive.

As Mr. Dempsey winced with pain and rage, Mr. Kearns said: "Jack, are you going to stand for that sort of stuff?"

He turned on his heel, overtook the departing offender, caught him by the coat lapel, swung him about and said to him:

"Say you! For two pins, three-fourth of the gate receipts, a guarantee of $800,000, and seventy-five per cent of the moving picture rights, It'd give you a wallop in the nose!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The world's biggest movie house now graces Times Square—a glowering block long structure that will at least convince critics the industry has outgrown its frightened and questioning infancy.

Merely to stand across the street and inspect it sends one home stiff necked. On its topmost peak is the largest glass ball in the world which binoculars will reveal as a clock. It is the ultimate word in movie swank—even to ushing.

Each maroon clad usher greets the customer with a brisk West Point salute. There are, for instance, 26 lounge rooms where patrons of the Bronx may meet relatives from far flung Brooklyn. In the balcony foyer stretches the longest rug in the world—costing more than the leading movie house in Ashtabula.

The semi-circular orchestra pit is fashioned like an elevator and by pressing button it appears and vanishes. Four physicians will be availavle at all times and if a hurry up operation is necessary the surgical equipment is at hand.

The lobby is five stories high and the battery of telephone booths requires some twenty operators. The atmosphere is to be very katish and as gilt and plushy as that of the opera. Evening dress will not be at all out of place.

Newer hotels are providing corkscrews in each bathroom. They are attached to the wall by chains and cannot be carried out. But the most gleeful touch of all is encompassed in a list of rules in the bathrooms of one hotel. One rule says: "It is against the law to mix or serve liquor brought into the hotel;" and down a little further is, "A charge of one dollar is made for furnishing cocktail and highball glasses."

Night club popularity is by spurts. One bursts with life one week and the next may resemble the desolated Grand Central at 3 a. m. In some cases entertainers gain a following and in some others the head waiters draw the crowd. But the real smash is in collecting celebrities. The supper club crowd are those who feel in the swim of life if they are surrounded by stage folk, divorcees, renowned Lorelei, cinema stars and the like In the popular places the floors are so small the majority "drink out" the dances. The most devoted patrons this winter seem to be those aging Romeos who enjoy company of diffident blondes with innumerable diamond sleeve bracelets. There is another impressive feature and that is the bored nonchalance of the gathering. Laughter is seldom heard.

There is that story of a night club customer given to boasting of his sudden wealth dredged from the films. He talked—for the benefit of other customers—of his de luxe Park Avenue apartment filled with rare paintings, gold service, bric-a-brac and rugs. Arriving home at 4 a. m. he found the apartment stripped bare. On a table was a pencil scrawl, "You were not boasting!"

As a peeping night club guest I saw my host settle a tab of $62. There were eight in the party and the refreshments consisted of a razor thin sandwich each, three quarts of table water and atrocious service.

In the washroom of the same club one of those impertinent young Tarzans who brush imaginery flecks from clothes was nearing disgust with night life. His car had been stolen from out front—the second he had lost this season.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Every Inch a Queen.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18. — When Marie of Rumania had concluded the official part of her visit to the United States and was about to leave Washington on her transcontinental tour she was asked whether during the remainder of her visit in this country she would continue to be a queen. The idea back of the question was that since royalty sometimes avails itself of the absurd fiction of an incognito, perhaps she would complete her journey as Mrs. Somebody from Bucharest.

"I am a queen," she replied, "and wherever I go I shall go as a queen."

There was no arrogance in the answer, nor in the manner in which it was made, and no boastfulness such as led Shakespeare's mad monarch to proclaim himself every inch a king. It was a simple statement of her status in the world, made in an altogether matter of fact way, serenely and with dignity.

Now that she is rounding out her stay in this country Americans are coming to know that she is indeed a queen—every inch a queen. She would be that if there were not a throne left in all the world, it is conceded. What it is that makes here that is, however, a question that is puzzling many people in this presumptively most democratic of democracies.

Is it the blood of all the Czars that flows through her veins? Is it the fact that she looks the part, and acts it? Is it that she has been for a decade the most talked about, the most written about, the best press-agented royalty of the Old World? Is it that she is co-ruler of a country almost exactly the size of New Mexico and not half as large as Texas, with a population not one-sixth that of the United States? Is it her beauty, her regal appearance? Is it her mentality? Is it because she personifies the dreams of those who believe in fairies—and in queens? Is it because she has studied the job and is good at it? Or is it because she is what, in some parts of this country, would be termed "a natural-born politician," with the gift for arousing, commanding, and holding a popular following?

Many Other Questions.

There are many other questions concerning Marie of Rumania that the people of the United States are asking each other or themselves. What is there about her, for instance, that led several hundred women in New York to scramble for the privilege of merely sitting for a second in the chair that she had occupied but briefly? It was a very ordinary chair. It was not a throne, unless she had made it such by her brief occupancy of it. It is understandable why women, and men, too, might want to sit on a real throne, but why the rush to sit in that New York piece of furniture? Will that chair now be preserved in the Metropolitan Museum, or will it be brought to Washington and enshrined in the National Museum?

What is there about her that led the Hobo Convention in Omaha to invite her to look in upon its deliberations? Or that led the head of a great labor union to say of her, "Labor would do better to devote its energies to defeating American politicians with bad records than to insulting a gracious and charming guest, at the behest of the propaganda bureau of the third internationale?"

What is her gift that enabled her to put instantly at his ease a Yankee President who had been worried for days about whether he should kiss the

Shop Now, Mail Early

Christmas, bearing a message of good will, is but five weeks distant, Postmaster J. Edwin McClure reminds East Liverpool postal patrons today in suggesting the two-fold advantage in early mailing of Yuletide gifts.

In another column of today's Review-Tribune, the postoffice department calls attention to the importance of doing your Christmas mailing before the rush begins. Make certain that your parcels contain the complete address of the person for whom they are intended, and it is important all containers should be strong and durable. Otherwise they may go to the dead letter office.

The Christmas shopping season has opened. Holiday stocks are now on the shelves and in cases in East Liverpool's stores. Merchants and clerks are prepared to serve their patrons.

Prepare your gift list today. Then shop, wrap packages, post thereon the "Don't Open Until Christmas" suggestion, and mail at once. Clerks in stores and postoffices will appreciate your thoughtfulness, and the shopper and sender will avoid the confusion that inevitably results when Yuletide buying is deferred until the eleventh hour.

A Sage Prophesies

Thomas A. Edison, passing from inventive wizardry to prophecy, is always interesting. He has become the leading American sage. Here is his latest outgiving, as recorded by an interviewer in the Forum:

Cities in the future will be noisier than ever, but we shall become able to endure the racket by being mercifully deafened to it.

City traffic problems will be solved not by policemen but by engineers. There will be express streets and depressed cross streets.

Skyscrapers will be restricted because, by disgorging great masses of people at one time, they cause serious congestion of streets and transportation.

City roofs will be utilized as landing places for aircraft.

American cities sooner or later will tackle the problem of management as big business now does, and then there will be efficient city government.

Newspaper readers are probably familiar with all of these ideas. But it is reassuring to have the work of an eminent authority to support hopeful expectations.

The one novel suggestion is that regarding noise. Is there really no recourse for sensitive folk except deafness? Or cannot engineers soften and deaden the racket more and more hereafter, along lines already started?

Mr. Edison has probably allowed his own infirmity to color his thinking. He has regarded his own deafness as an asset, protecting him from hearing things he didn't want to hear. People who want to hear the pleasant sounds may yet overcome the unpleasant by direct attack instead of surrendering to them.

A Terrible Country

A speaker at a big gathering in Memphis told his associates that there was more money lost in the United States last year, as the result of crime, than the whole international war debt amounts to. He proceeded to give some other statistics along the same line, as follows:

"There are more divorces in this country every 11 days than there are in Great Britain in a year.

"There are six policemen killed in Chicago to every criminal who is killed.

"There are more criminals in the United States by 50,000 than there were soldiers in the combined armies at Waterloo."

Probably all true. And we might adduce just as striking statistics on the other side, to show what a decent, kindly, honest country this is—how many millions are given every year to charity, how many hundred thousand citizens serve in community compaigns, how many sober, law-abiding people there are doing their duty to God and man and taking fine care of their families, etc. But what's the use? One little question may suffice, not to condone the evil that America must plead guilty to, but to sum up and show the essential soundness of this land of contrasts:

Is there any other country in the world where the critics would rather live?

Discouraging Visitors

Not by a parliamentary law, but by an "order" issued by the secretary-general of the Fascist party, everybody in Italy is compelled to salute the Fascist banners by lifting the hat when then are carried through the streets in Blang Shirt processions.

"The order," says a cable from Rome, "is applicable to foreigners as well as to natives, and ignorance of it will not be considered an excuse for failure to heed it."

This is as if, in the United States, anyone who did not take off his hat to a Republican eagle or a Democratic rooster—according to which party was in power—when a political procession passed by should be thrown into jail.

That sort of thing may be all right for the Italian people. As for the rest of the world—people don't have to go to Italy. There are other countries where Americans can go and spend their money.

JUST NATURALLY BOILING OVER

As they tell the tale along Broadway, Mr. Jack Dempsey, accompanied by his impresario, Mr. Jack Kearns, was in a subway crush when a husky stranger trod with emphasis on the former champion's toes and violently rammed a sharp elbow into his short-ribs.

The intent was obvious. It plainly was not carelessness. The other person had chosen deliberately to be offensive.

As Mr. Dempsey winced with pain and rage, Mr. Kearns said:

"Jack, are you going to stand for that sort of stuff?"

He turned on his heel, overtook the departing offender, caught him by the coat lapel, swung him about and said to him:

"Say you! For two pins, three-fourth of the gate receipts, a guarantee of $800,000, and seventy-five per cent of the moving picture rights, It'd give you a wallop in the nose!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The world's biggest movie house now graces Times Square—a glowering block long structure that will at least convince critics the industry has outgrown its frightened and questioning infancy.

Merely to stand across the street and inspect it sends one home stiff necked. On its topmost peak is the largest glass ball in the world which binoculars will reveal as a clock. It is the ultimate word in movie swank—even to ushing.

Each maroon clad usher greets the customer with a brisk West Point salute. There are, for instance, 26 lounge rooms where patrons of the Bronx may meet relatives from far flung Brooklyn. In the balcony foyer stretches the longest rug in the world—costing more than the leading movie house in Ashtabula.

The semi-circular orchestra pit is fashioned like an elevator and by pressing button it appears and vanishes. Four physicians will be availavle at all times and if a hurry up operation is necessary the surgical equipment is at hand.

The lobby is five stories high and the battery of telephone booths requires some twenty operators. The atmosphere is to be very katish and as gilt and plushy as that of the opera. Evening dress will not be at all out of place.

Newer hotels are providing corkscrews in each bathroom. They are attached to the wall by chains and cannot be carried out. But the most gleeful touch of all is encompassed in a list of rules in the bathrooms of one hotel. One rule says: "It is against the law to mix or serve liquor brought into the hotel;" and down a little further is, "A charge of one dollar is made for furnishing cocktail and high-ball glasses."

Night club popularity is by spurts. One bursts with life one week and the next may resemble the desolated Grand Central at 3 a. m. In some cases entertainers gain a following and in some others the head waiters draw the crowd. But the real smash is in collecting celebrities. The supper club crowd are those who feel in the swim of life if they are surrounded by stage folk, divorcees, renowned Loreleis, cinema stars and the like In the popular places the floors are so small the majority "drink out" the dances. The most devoted patrons this winter seem to be those aging Romeos who enjoy company of diffident blondes with innumerable diamond sleeve bracelets. There is another impressive feature and that is the bored nonchalance of the gathering. Laughter is seldom heard.

There is that story of a night club customer given to boasting of his sudden wealth dredged from the films. He talked—for the benefit of other customers—of his de luxe Park Avenue apartment filled with rare paintings, gold service, bric-a-brac and rugs. Arriving home at 4 a. m. he found the apartment stripped bare. On a table was a pencil scrawl, "You were not boasting!"

As a peeping night club guest I saw my host settle a tab of $62. There were eight in the party and the refreshments consisted of a razor thin sandwich each, three quarts of table water and atrocious service.

In the washroom of the same club one of those impertinent young Tarzans who brush imaginery flecks from clothes was nearing disgust with night life. His car had been stolen from out front—the second he had lost this season.

ow or why did it come about that could pass unscathed through the y mess of jealousies, bickerings, d controversies that featured the far west part of her travels? What is her habiliament to which mud will not cling, no matter how viciously it may be flung?

Above all, what is it about her that has drawn thousands of people, never before curious-minded or gapers at tables, into the lines that have awaited the passing of her car or her train or her appearance in a public place?

In Washington, a man who had been next to a president of the United States, made himself one of a crowd that awaited her appearance on a balcony to wave her adieu to departing officials of this country. This man had contact with other royalties—a king and a queen and an heir apparent—and with many others of the world's notables. What led him to stand at the curb for a glimpse of Marie of Rumania?

A Queen Plus Personality.

Every one remembers the story of the princess who proved her royalty when she tossed in anguish on a bed where 20 mattresses superimposed a single pea. There are many qualities with which royalty may be endowed and which every human, be he king, peasant, or president, may own—consideration of others, graciousness, sincerity, poise—but there is one elusive quality which is indiscriminate in choosing its possessor, which may make a prince of a pauper, and which is the blessing bestowed by the fairy-godmother at the christening, and that is personality.

People applaud the home runs of Babe Ruth, the eighty-yard dashes of Red Grange, the courage that takes a young woman through the torment of the English Channel, and the High C of a child prima donna, but they flounder in a muddle of sentimental adjectives when they try to discuss the woman who is the talk of the fireside and table, the office and the street car. "She's got style, she's regular folks, she's—oh, she's wonderful!" they say.

That woman has brains, they say again. She has so much dignity back of her that she can afford to do and say what she pleases. In short, she has all the attributes of a queen plus personality.

Marie of Rumania has a genius for saying the right thing at the right time, and for making a personal friend out of each member of the huge mobs that gather to do her honor or to gratify individual curiosity. When she returned the greetings of Washingtonians by going out on the balcony of the Rumanian legation and saying, "You have made me very happy by coming here," and when next day she paused on the steps and said a simple but cordial good morning to the crowd that had gathered to see her leave for the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington and for a brief visit to Mount Vernon, she seemed to gather them all to her as if each were present at a private and personal meeting.

Who would not have enjoyed being a mere decoration at the dinner at the White House when the taciturn man who once was a freckled-faced, sandy-haired farmer boy seated on his right a royal queen who was the favorite grand daughter of Victoria and who is related to all the rulers of Europe!

Perhaps he said to her, "That's a pretty crown, but we don't believe in crowns in this country—they aren't economical."

Perhaps she said, "A crown becomes a queen!"

The Universal City "bank" hold what is believed to be the world's record for successive hold-ups—300 times in the last several years. It has figured in many movies.

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria —a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

"GREEN HAT" HERE NOV. 25

Ceramic Theatre Books Stage Version of Arlen's Novel.

A dash through a window into a room of a Deauville hotel by a brace of inquiring reporters, a shriek from a frightened maid, and "The Green Hat" will be off at the Ceramic theatre Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night; on a start that will undoubtedly place it among the season's blue ribbon awards.

"The Green Hat," as everyone who has mastered two syllables of the English language must know by this time, is Michael Arlen's dramatization of his internationally famous novel by the same name.

"The Green Hat" reveals expert workmanship in its stage form, just as it does between two covers. The more vital incidents have been handled with discretion. The episode in the Deauville hotel immediately after the suicide of Boyd Fenwick, Napier Harpenden's flat in London, 10 years later, a convent nursing home on the outskirts of Paris, and the library of Sutton Marle, where takes place that dramatic return of Iris, serve as settings. Those who know the story will recognize the locale, and what takes place. One unfamiliar with the narrative misses nothing by not having the happenings told here. There is no use taking the edge off an enjoyable evening by sketching ever so briefly the various steps in the unfolding of the grim tragedy of the "rotten Marches," and the thwarting of a love on the part of young Harpenden that, if undisturbed, might have written a vastly different chapter into two lives.

Responsible actuaries of the theatre report that its audiences delight in it, for it has been established as a national curiosity as something that one must see in order to be able to say that he or she has seen it.

A superb cast will present the play here, and A. H. Woods' general stage director, Norman Houston, has staged the production.

WOMAN APPLIES BRAKE; STOPS FATAL DASH ON STEEP GRADE

Mrs. David Steele Tells About Her Most Thrilling Experience.

Mrs. David Steele lives at 113 Smith street, Lafayette, Ind. In her narrative, teeming with interest, she recently told how she was on a steep hill and going down fast. And then all at once, like a miracle, she was saved by Tepee Herb Tonic.

"Yes, I believe that Tepee Herb Tonic actually saved my life for I was going down hill fast," says Mrs. Steele.

"For several years I had been in poor health and I couldn't find out what was the matter with me. I took a lot of medicine but nothing did me any good. Something just kept right on dragging me down. I felt weak and tired. I was constipated and I couldn't sleep soundly. I had a gnawing sensation in the pit of my stomach.

"Finally I began taking Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic and from that day to this I have steadily been regaining my health.

'My bowels are now regular. I have an appetite and I sleep very soundly. I'm stronger than I have been for two years.

"I am surely glad to recommend Tepee Herb Tonic. I know it will build up the body and cleanse the system."

Tepee Herb Tonic is Nature's medicine for sick systems through which stomach acids have spread like a baneful poison. Tepee Herb Tonic contains no mineral taint. It is purely vegetable. It is a food and tonic and it heals sore stomachs.

Tepee Herb Tonic is reconstructive and delicately adapted to stomach needs. It makes wealth by building health through the stomach, blood and nerves.

Tepee Herb Tonic may be had in East Liverpool at Carnahan's Drug Stores.

This man had contact with other royalties—a king and a queen and an heir apparent—and with many others of the world's notables. What led him to stand at the curb for a glimpse of Marie of Rumania?

A Queen Plus Personality.

Every one remembers the story of the princess who proved her royalty when she tossed in anguish on a bed where 20 mattresses superimposed a single pea. There are many qualities with which royalty may be endowed and which every human, be he king, peasant, or president, may own—consideration of others, graciousness, sincerity, poise—but there is one elusive quality which is indiscriminate in choosing its possessor, which may make a prince of a pauper, and which is the blessing bestowed by the fairy-godmother at the christening, and that is personality.

People applaud the home runs of Babe Ruth, the eighty-yard dashes of Red Grange, the courage that takes a young woman through the torment of the English Channel, and the High C of a child prima donna, but they flounder in a muddle of sentimental adjectives when they try to discuss the woman who is the talk of the fireside and table, the office and the street car. "She's got style, she's regular folks, she's—oh, she's wonderful!" they say.

That woman has brains, they say again. She has so much dignity back of her that she can afford to do and say what she pleases. In short, she has all the attributes of a queen plus personality.

Marie of Rumania has a genius for saying the right thing at the right time, and for making a personal friend out of each member of the huge mobs that gather to do her honor or to gratify individual curiosity. When she returned the greetings of Washingtonians by going out on the balcony of the Rumanian legation and saying, "You have made me very happy by coming here," and when next day she paused on the steps and said a simple but cordial good morning to the crowd that had gathered to see her leave for the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington and for a brief visit to Mount Vernon, she seemed to gather them all to her as if each were present at a private and personal meeting.

Who would not have enjoyed being a mere decoration at the dinner at the White House when the taciturn man who once was a freckled-faced, sandy-haired farmer boy seated on his right a royal queen who was the favorite grand daughter of Victoria and who is related to all the rulers of Europe!

Perhaps he said to her, "That's a pretty crown, but we don't believe in crowns in this country—they aren't economical."

Perhaps she said, "A crown becomes a queen!"

The Universal City "bank" hold what is believed to be the world's record for successive hold-ups—300 times in the last several years. It has figured in many movies.

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria —a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

"GREEN HAT" HERE NOV. 25

Ceramic Theatre Books Stage Version of Arlen's Novel.

A dash through a window into a room of a Deauville hotel by a brace of inquiring reporters, a shriek from a frightened maid, and "The Green Hat" will be off at the Ceramic theatre Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night; on a start that will undoubtedly place it among the season's blue ribbon awards.

"The Green Hat," as everyone who has mastered two syllables of the English language must know by this time, is Michael Arlen's dramatization of his internationally famous novel by the same name.

"The Green Hat" reveals expert workmanship in its stage form, just as it does between two covers. The more vital incidents have been handled with discretion. The episode in the Deauville hotel immediately after the suicide of Boyd Fenwick, Napier Harpenden's flat in London, 10 years later, a convent nursing home on the outskirts of Paris, and the library of Sutton Marle, where takes place that dramatic return of Iris, serve as settings. Those who know the story will recognize the locale, and what takes place. One unfamiliar with the narrative misses nothing by not having the happenings told here. There is no use taking the edge off an enjoyable evening by sketching ever so briefly the various steps in the unfolding of the grim tragedy of the "rotten Marches," and the thwarting of a love on the part of young Harpenden that, if undisturbed, might have written a vastly different chapter into two lives.

Responsible actuaries of the theatre report that its audiences delight in it, for it has been established as a national curiosity as something that one must see in order to be able to say that he or she has seen it.

A superb cast will present the play here, and A. H. Woods' general stage director, Norman Houston, has staged the production.

WOMAN APPLIES BRAKE; STOPS FATAL DASH ON STEEP GRADE

Mrs. David Steele Tells About Her Most Thrilling Experience.

Mrs. David Steele lives at 113 Smith street, Lafayette, Ind. In her narrative, teeming with interest, she recently told how she was on a steep hill and going down fast. And then all at once, like a miracle, she was saved by Tepee Herb Tonic.

"Yes, I believe that Tepee Herb Tonic actually saved my life for I was going down hill fast," says Mrs. Steele.

"For several years I had been in poor health and I couldn't find out what was the matter with me. I took a lot of medicine but nothing did me any good. Something just kept right on dragging me down. I felt weak and tired. I was constipated and I couldn't sleep soundly. I had a gnawing sensation in the pit of my stomach.

"Finally I began taking Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic and from that day to this I have steadily been regaining my health.

'My bowels are now regular. I have an appetite and I sleep very soundly. I'm stronger than I have been for two years.

"I am surely glad to recommend Tepee Herb Tonic. I know it will build up the body and cleanse the system."

Tepee Herb Tonic is Nature's medicine for sick systems through which stomach acids have spread like a baneful poison. Tepee Herb Tonic contains no mineral taint. It is purely vegetable. It is a food and tonic and it heals sore stomachs.

Tepee Herb Tonic is reconstructive and delicately adapted to stomach needs. It makes wealth by building health through the stomach, blood and nerves.

Tepee Herb Tonic may be had in East Liverpool at Carnahan's Drug Stores.

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. He is aimless and amiable. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers, in spite of his natural bashfulness, to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla, in his "comic little car" After a moment's hesitation she accepts his offer. As they ride he tries to "explain" himself.' He has money—but is suffering from a bad case of "dual personality." He is obviously greatly bothered about something, some conflict with himself. She, for her part, tells that her name is Hester Kemble. She, like Julian, is from the East They overtake and pass the trucks bearing the rest of the troupe. As they stop for dinner, the others come in. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre;" Sadie, an ex-chorus girl trouper, and the rest of the cast. When the journey is resumed and La Jolla reached, Julian decides to remain with the troupe. It fascinates him.

CHAPTER FOUR.

That evening Julian Reed found himself afloat on the high seas of enchantment. The little stage, screened in canvas and skilfully lighted, formed a magical setting under the stars and the pepper trees for the brightly costumed harlequinade that opened the bill. Sadie danced and sang faintily as Columbine. The striding man called Lester made a fine figure. And Mr. J. Murry Watt, as a grotesque tragic Punchinello, stirred the pleasant and attentive audience. It was all romantically unreal. The second playlet was a tabloid medieval tragedy, set and played with atmosphere and with surprising completeness. Hestor Kemble appeared in a character role, as an old woman, indeed. He didn't recognize her during her first scene. They knew their work, these happy-go-lucky folk, all of them.

He stood, during the intermission, at the back, watching the audience; prosperous folk, the women prettily dressed, the men an easy self-assured lot; all aware of comfortable standing in the highly organized world into which he hadn't been able to fit himself. At every point of contact, even with this amusing troupe whose natures his own could sympathetically understand, he was an outsider.

A friendly hand slipped within his own, and he started. Sadie giggled.

"Pretty good house, isn't it?"

He inclined his head, forlornly.

"I've been counting up from the side. Ought to be three or four hundred in it for me. One or two more like this, and we'll shake down a bit of salary Saturday night."

"Oh, haven't you . . . ."

"Not regularly. Not lately. And we only get twenty a week, all of us, when we do get it."

"That's rather . . ."

"I'll say it is. If it wasn't for the outdoor life, I don't know as I'd . . ."

Voices raise suddenly behind them, men's voices, over by the ticket booth. People in the rear rows looked around. He felt Sadie's hand tighten on his arm.

"Oh, good Lord!" she muttered.

"What is it?"

"That man's cornered Murry at last. Well . . . . there goes the little old salary! That'll be about all!"

He heard the sonorous voice in subdued expostulation. He could see them now, dimly—a fat angry man chewing a cigar, and the majestic Mr. Watt in curling wig, doublet and hose, trying to lead him outside.

"Now!" cried the fat man, around his cigar. "We'll settle it right away now, or the car goes back to me."

Reed moved a little way toward them.

"What is it?" asked Sadie, still on his arm. "What are you going to do?"

"It seems sort of too bad . . . that man oughtn't to . . . ."

"But what . . . ." She saw his lips tighten nervously. Uncertaintly, watching him, she released his arm. He hesitated. He was always hesitating. Perhaps that was his thought, too, for suddenly, stiffening his shoulders in a curiously ineffectual way, he walked straight out through the gate where the two men had now disappeared into the night.

Both turned and stared.

"I assure you, my dear sir . . . ." Murray Watt began then.

"A little of your money'll do all the talking I want to hear,' said the fat man, shortly.

"It is very unfortunate . . ." Watt began again, this time including the obviously confused intruder.

"How . . . how much do you need?" Reed asked, in a softly explosive voice. Almost an apologetic voice.

"It'll be six hundred and a half," said the fat man.

"I'll pay it." He was rather quaintly dramatic about it.

"Yes, I will." He fumbled in his pocket and produced the book of traveler's checks, hurriedly counting through the remaining blue slips. "I've only got about three hundred and fifty left here . . . ."

"Six hundred and a half!"

"But"—he was getting out the letter of credit—"I can draw the rest in the morning down at the bank. Will that be all right?"

The only response the fat man made to that was to produce a fat fountain pen. And there, under the light of the entrance, Reed signed the checks and passed them over.

"See that youd on't try any early getaway in the morning," said the fat man, gruffly.

At that Mr. J. Murry Datt turned on him indignantly.

"Have the decency not to insult a gentleman!" he said, in splendid, measured tones.

The man grunted, and went away. Then the tall figure in the curled wig and the wine colored costume reached out two warm hands to his deliverer.

"My dear friend, the moment I saw you I said to myself, 'There is a gifted young man capable of understanding the fine arts." It has been my privilege in the past years to know many of those noble silent figures who have gladly come to the rescue of our calling in its darker hours. We live in a materialistic age, Mr. Reed. Art has no place to lay its weary head. It was not always so."

"Ah, indeed, my dear! Very well . . . Mr. Reed, I will give you my note in the morning. And we will say nothing about this little matter. It shall stand between us, as man to man. Not a syllable, Sadie!" With which he strode away.

The girl captured Reed's arm again, now, and led him back within the enclosure. He was pushing up his hair and wiping beads of sweat off his forehead. Sadie was very quiet.

But as they stood in the shadow, she remarked, in that very dry, guarded way of hers, "I wouldn't let Hester know about what you've done. Of course you know you're paying our salaries this week."

"Oh, no I just couldn't let this fellow . . ."

"Hester's funny about some things. Independent. She's a New Englander, you know. I came from Brockton myself. I know 'em. Gee, it was a swell thing to do!"

From the audience, rose a hum of interested chatter. Lights glowed softly behind the drawn curtains where the crew were setting the stage for the third and concluding play. Sadie found two of the little folding chairs and drew them together by the rear well where the ground was higher. "Let's sit down," she said. "We can see from here. Hester's wonderful in this play. You'll see."

He sank into one of the chairs. That odd incident had been more exciting than he had realized at the moment. Now his thoughts dwelt on it in retrospect. It was also rather stirring that the girl should slip her arm about his shoulders. She cuddled, apparently, as naturally and frankly as she breathed. He nearly draw away, but sensed that such behavior might hurt her feelings and sat rather uncomfortably rigid hoping that none of these people who were moving back to their seats might observe them. He had never in his life before sat so conspicuously in public with a girl embracing him. But there wasn't much light on them; and it happened nobody gave them a glance.

"Hester isn't happy," she said now.

He bent his head politely toward her.

"I haven't known her very long, of course. But I can see that. She's had a tough time. Did she tell you about it?"

"No. Nothing."

"It's just one of those cases . . . . a girl who could do anything if she could only get the chance. The theater business is full of 'em, you know.'

"I suppose it is."

"Oh, yes. And time's against her. A girl has to win her fight pretty quick in the theater. It isn't that she's old. She isn't thirty. And she could play young girls as long as she could walk. You'll see! But nobody in this business would believe that she could. They'd just look at her and say she wasn't the type. And that would be that. She'd had years of stock in the little cities. And she's played bits in New York, but it hasn't got her anywhere. Did she tell you how she happened to come out West?"

"I don't think she really told me anything."

"Humm! Of course. She wouldnt. She's funny. You know she's got a lot of fire in her. A good deal more than she knows herself. She'd suppress it. As long as she could. When she's most excited she's very quiet. Takes everything hard. Well—I was going to tell you—she had a little part in 'Thursday Out'—you know, the first of the Robert Johns plays . . . ."

"Oh, did she?"

"Sure. Played it all season in New York year before last. She's crazy about Robert Johns. His plays, I mean. Johns and Barrie. She knows exactly what she'd like to do, you know. She'd starve sooner than do a cheap play. She's the surest girl I ever knew about some things. She's got that sort of delicate quality. She was crazy to get into some of his other plays . . . you know, "I Wonder If They're True," or 'Hunger.' Simply crazy. But they wouldn't have her. It pretty nearly broke her heart, I think. Then a couple of months ago she read in the paper that the Interstellar people were going to do 'Hunger' in the pictures. You know they paid a hundred thousand dollars for it. It was in the papers."

"Why, yes, I . . . .'

"Well, what do you suppose Hester did?"

"I haven't an idea."

He spoke in such a remote voice that Sadie glanced up to see if he was listening, then smiled and gave him a hug. She chattered on.

"She had a little money left in a savings bank. She drew it all, came clear out here from New York, and tried to get into the picture. Lived in a furnished room in Hollywood and pestered them to death at the Interstellar. Oh, Hester'll fight, you know. She'll fight. But they wouldn't even make a test of her. She did pretty nearly starve, I think. And then she joined us. Twenty a week, when you get it, and ride on a truck and sleep in a tent. But I like the tent. I'll say that you do sleep!"

"I suppose it is."

"Oh, yes. And time's against her. A girl has to win her fight pretty quick in the theater. It isn't that she's old. She isn't thirty. And she could play young girls as long as she could walk. You'll see! But nobody in this business would believe that she could. They'd just look at her and say she wasn't the type. And that would be that. She'd had years of stock in the little cities. And she's played bits in New York, but it hasn't got her anywhere. Did she tell you how she happened to come out West?"

"I don't think she really told me anything."

"Humm! Of course. She wouldnt. She's funny. You know she's got a lot of fire in her. A good deal more than she knows herself. She'd suppress it. As long as she could. When she's most excited she's very quiet. Takes everything hard. Well—I was going to tell you—she had a little part in 'Thursday Out'—you know, the first of the Robert Johns plays . . . ."

"Oh, did she?"

"Sure. Played it all season in New York year before last. She's crazy about Robert Johns. His plays, I mean. Johns and Barrie. She knows exactly what she'd like to do, you know. She'd starve sooner than do a cheap play. She's the surest girl I ever knew about some things. She's got that sort of delicate quality. She was crazy to get into some of his other plays . . . you know, "I Wonder If They're True," or 'Hunger.' Simply crazy. But they wouldn't have her. It pretty nearly broke her heart, I think. Then a couple of months ago she read in the paper that the Interstellar people were going to do 'Hunger' in the pictures. You know they paid a hundred thousand dollars for it. It was in the papers."

"Why, yes, I . . . ."

"Well, what do you suppose Hester did?"

"I haven't an idea."

He spoke in such a remote voice that Sadie glanced up to see if he was listening, then smiled and gave him a hug. She chattered on.

"She had a little money left in a savings bank. She drew it all, came clear out here from New York, and tried to get into the picture. Lived in a furnished room in Hollywood and pestered them to death at the Interstellar. Oh, Hester'll fight, you know. She'll fight. But they wouldn't even make a test of her. She did pretty nearly starve, I think. And then she joined us. Twenty a week, when you get it, and ride on a truck and sleep in a tent. But I like the tent. I'll say that you do sleep!"

TWO MEN HURT WHEN TROLLEY CAR RUNS AWAY

Jumps Track on Steep Hill Near Batavia.

SPUR LINE WRECK

Operator and Lone Passenger Seriously Injured.

BATAVIA, Ohio, Nov. 18.—Two men narrowly escaped death near here today when a trolley car of the Georgetown and Portsmouth spur line jumped the tracks while going down a steep hill near here and was practically demolished.

Fred Moore, operator of the car, and Dale Demaris, 19, the only passenger, were both seriously injured in the crash, according to first reports reaching here.

Demaris was suffering from an arm broken in four different places and possible internal injuries, it was said, while Moore, also thought to have sustained internal injuries was reported to be badly cut and bruised.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Wednesday's late reaction was carried over into the early trading in the stock market today. The professionals poured out a heavy volume of offerings of United States Steel, General Motors and other pivotal stocks, in an effort to force a lower range of prices for the market as a whole. But these offerings were well taken and the market displayed considerable resistance to price-smashing.

A decline of 25 to 30 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil completed the "first round" of country wide price-cuts forecasted about a month ago, and the direct result of which is expected to be a corresponding decline in crude oil production. The mid-western gasoline markets were weak, with prices down about a quarter-cent a gallon.

Heavy trading in the Standard Oil of New Jersey rights took place simultaneously with the decline in the market price of the stock to 41¼, the lowest price on the move. Lower prices were also quoted for Phillips, Marland, Skelly, Shell Union and other prominent oil shares.

Compilations showing a good increase in railroad net earnings were exhibited in the financial district, but trading in the railroad shares was comparatively light.

The race for market leadership between U. S. Steel and General Motors was won by the latter, which also extended its price "spread" to 3 points above its rival. Stewart Warner continued its advance to above 68, and Pullman was active at a slightly higher range of prices.

Jurors Hear Woman

leave her house, mount her mule and follow a rickety wagon that went in the direction of De Russey's lane. She followed long enough to learn that the wagon was empty and did not contain any of her corn.

It was while returning home through the lane that she came upon the three persons near the now famous crab-apple tree.

Q—When you got to the tree did you get off the mule?

A—Yes, and tied the mule to a cedar tree.

Q—What, if anything, did you hear?

A—I heard mumbling voices. They kept coming closer and closer.

Q—What did you hear them say?

A—I heard some one say: "How do you explain these letters?"

"Then I heard: 'God damn it, let go.' Then I heard the wind going out of some one. Then I heard some one scream. Then there was a flash light from here to there (illustrated) and something glittered.

Q—Then did you hear a woman's voice.

A—I heard a shot and a woman said: 'Henry, easy, easy, easy, Henry.' Then there was a shot and something fell to the ground. Then a woman was screaming.

Points Out Accused.

Q.—What did you do.

A.—I ran for my mule and jumped on it. I stubbed my toe on a stump while I ran.

Q.—That was when you lost your moccasin.

A.—Yes, then came shots — bang, bang, bang. I was on my mule, by this time.

Q.—Then what did you do.

A.—I went home and sat down and began thinking about my corn. And thinking about those shots I said to myself, "there is something wrong." So I went back and tied my mule to the tree and I heard something like a screech and then I got off my mule and the moon was shining very bright. Then I looked and saw a gray haired woman was on her knees doing something with her hands.

Q.—And have you identified that woman.

A.—Yes, Mrs. Hall.

A.—Yes, Henry Stevens.

Q.—Do you see in this courtroom any persons you saw that night.

A.—Yes.

Q.—Point them out.

She then identified Mrs. Hall and her brothers.

Hushed Silence in Courtroom.

The courtroom, packed far beyond its capacity, was held in hushed silence by Mrs. Gibson's story.

As she told of seeing Mrs. Hall kneeling and weeping, Mrs. Hall raised her gloved hand to her face, then dropped it, and clenched it into a fist. Her lips worked nervously.

He did not drop his gaze, however, holding his head high, his eyes on the witness.

Defense Attorney Case asked the identity of a person standing near Salome Cerrenner, Mrs. Gibson's aged mother, who is to be a witness for the defense against her daughter. Simpson told Case it was a police officer put there in Case "you (Case) have planned for her to cry out while this woman is testifying."

"I object to this," shouted Case.

"Oh, well," said Simpson nonchalantly, "he is there to preserve order."

Offered Bribe, She Says.

Prosecutor Simpson then took a picture of Felix Di Martini, who for several months after the murder, was Mrs. Hall's private detective and asked the woman lying on the bed if she had ever seen him before.

"Yes," said Mrs. Gibson, "he came to my window and said: 'I will pay you to keep your mouth out of this.' I banged my gun on the floor and told him to get out of the house.

"Why did you bang the gun down?" Simpson inquired.

While Mrs. Gibson was giving her dramatic testimony in a setting more strange than ever witnessed in a court room Henry De La Bruyerre Carpender, cousin of the three defendants also charged with murder, but not on trial now, was brought into court from the jail tunnel and was seated near Henry Stevens.

Stenographer Reads Testimony.

Simpson asked the jurors if they had heard all of Mrs. Gibson's testimony, some of which was given in a weak, barely audible voice. One of the jurors said he did not. So the prosecutor asked Judge Charles W. Parker, who is sitting on the case, with Judge Frank L. Cleary, if he would instruct the court stenographer to read the testimony to the 12 men.

Judge Parker instructed the stenographer to do so. While the stenographer was monotonously reading the questions and answers, Mrs. Gibson asked the nurse to prop her up a little and she wiped her perspiring forehead with a handkerchief. Then she closed her tired eyes. In profile her face might have been that of a dead woman. An occasional movement of her hands, once brown with heavy work, now gray with hospital pallor, indicated she was really alive, but very weak.

Witness Cross-examined.

Case's examination was conducted in a considerate tone. He asked his question slowly.

A:—Yes sir.

Q.—Do you remember one evening when he requested you to go over what you did that night?

A.—They didn't ask me to do nothing. I went over the same thing all over again.

Q.—You remember that evening?

A.—Yes. It was the night after Clifford Hayes was arrested.

Hayes is the chap who four years ago was accused of the murder by Raymond Schneider who with Pearl Bahmer found the bodies of Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills in De Russey's lane on Saturday morning, Sept. 16, thirty-six hours after the slaying.

Fails To Shake Her Story.

Q.—Is it a fact that you returned to the scene in the day light of the next day?

A.—No, I did not. I didn't go back until I went with David.

Case asked her if she knew George Seidle. She said she did. Case asked her if she ever told him she "would like to tell a certain story."

She hesitated and then replied:

"Oh yes, I remember. He said to me: 'How much will you take for two mules?'"

Case switched quickly to another question.

Q—Did you tell Mr. Taller and Mr. David that while you were riding along De Russey's lane that you did not get off the mule, but rode straight home after hearing the shots?

A.—No.

Mrs. Gibson seemed to be getting weak at this point.

Dr. Charles Snyder, the young physician in attendance, took her temperature.

Her temperature was 102.4.

The sick woman shook her head from side to side as Case tried time and again to get her to say that she tried to get George Seidle to corroborate her story of what she saw in the lane on the night of the murders.

"I did not," she reiterated with each shake of her head.

Nurse, Doctor at Bedside.

Attendants carried the sick woman from the ambulance into the courtroom.

She was carried up the circular steps to the second floor and into the courtroom where she was laid carefully on the bed. A hush pervaded the courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson was lifted from the stretcher and placed upon the bed. Two uniformed policemen stood guard.

Mrs. Gibson tried to raise her head and turn so that she could get a view of Mrs. Hall and her brothers. She could not, however, and sank back limply on the pillows. She was deathly pale.

Witness' Bed Turned Around.

The bed was turned around so that Mrs. Gibson's feet pointed at the witness stand. The back of Mrs. Gibson's head faced the spectators leaning over their chairs in the chapel-like courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson seemed on the verge of collapse. Her eyes blinked in the lights over the judge's bench.

Mrs. Hall looked straight ahead.

Mrs. Gibson lay on a white bed, a nurse and a doctor beside her, should she need restoratives in the event of collapse.

She was deathy white. All that showed over the sheets was her head, wrapped in a white towel.

"The state herewith produces a witness and asks to have her sworn in," said Prosecutor Alexander Simpson as soon as court was convened.

The Bible was brought over to the bedside and she took the oath.

Voice Barely Heard.

Mrs. Gibson's voice could barely be heard. She seemed to talk with an effort, as if her pain-racked body was calling upon all her resources.

Simpson asked his questions very gently.

The aisles of the court room and all standing room were jammed. A hospital atmosphere hung over the whole place, an atmosphere heavy with drama.

Mrs. Hall's face was inscrutable as she watched the strange sight of the witness, who might die at any time, testifying. Henry Stevens fists were clenched as he strained to catch Mrs. Gibson's low replies.

The court stenographer stood at the foot of her bed, repeating the low replies of the invalid so that the jury might get every word.

Several of the elderly jurors stood up, hands cupped to ears, to catch her testimony.

Her voice seemed to gain slightly in strength as she continued.

"Naaman, The Leper," Sermon Topic at Baptist Church.

CROWD ATTENDS

Miss Jean Mackey Sings at Wednesday Night Meet.

"God can be found only in God's stipulated way," declared Rev. Mel Morris in a sermon that deeply impressed one of the largest week-day crowds yet attending the First Baptist church revival last evening. "People there are who would go so far but refuse finishing the distance separating them," he said. "But the Almighty demands implicit obedience." His subject was "Naaman, the Leper."

Augmenting the attendance were many persons from other church congregations of the city.

Restored to their former health, Rev. and Mrs. A. H. O'Brien resumed active work during the service. Following a period of lay-prayers the former directed a lively testimony before the preaching period in which the old and young vied in expressions of religious experience.

With even more fervor than during her other appearances Miss Jean Mackey, one of the two famed Mackey sisters of New Cumberland, W. Va., directed the preliminary musical services in which finally the entire assemblage took part. Thus a fitting background for the evangelist's message was formed.

Miss Mackey sang with telling effect, "Alone With Thee," by Eaton, which she interpreted with such a clarity as to compel numerous repetitions by request of her hearers. "I want nothing more than to be a soul winner for Jesus" she interpolated during its rendition "and never do I want singing to be a business with me."

In lieu of a personal testimony Harry Chilton, the church chorister, sang "Only a Sinner."

"Though Naaman was as great as the world could make him, and as successful as he could ever hope to be he was handicapped by leprosy," said Rev. Mr. Morris. "And men now are similarly incapacitated by the leprosy of sin which may be profanity, idolatry, impurity, robbery or the flames of iniquity."

"The High Cost of Sin" will be Rev. Mr. Morris' sermon topic tonight. Miss Mackey will sing at the services.

SONGFEST HELD BY KIWANIANS

"Hugh Laughlin Jubilee Day" Observed at Luncheon.

A songfest featured the luncheon of the Kiwanis club in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today, in observance of "Hugh Laughlin Jubilee Day."

In addition to group singing and chorus numbers from the glee club, a solo, "Caroline," was rendered by John Golden. Claire Chambers was the accompanist.

At the close of the program, members of the club presented Prof. Laughlin with a large bouquet. The presentation speech was made by W. A. Weaver.

The club will entertain Review-Tribune newsboys at the Thanksgiving Day football game between the East Liverpool and Wellsville high schools at Patterson Field, it was announced.

Next Thursday being a holiday, there will be no meeting of the club.

"I've Got to Tell"

Mrs. Gibson were gravely concerned over the danger involved, as she recently underwent a blood transfusion and is suffering from a complication of diseases. She declared, however, that no matter what the cost to herself, she would testify that she saw Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, under the crabapple tree in De Russey's lane on the night when the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were murdered.

Save Her Physical Resources.

Mrs. Gibson's trip was made slowly so that all her physical resources would be at her command when she arrived here.

The ambulance left the Jersey city hospital at 7:42 and had reached Plainfield, N. J., 15 miles from Somerville, at 9:55.

Two automobiles, one carrying newspaperman, the other Inspector John J. Underwood and Captain Harry Walsh, slowly nosed their way from the hospital grounds.

Many early city workers paused in their rush for the tubes and stood in awe. They had heard who was in the ambulance.

Several automobiles followed the ambulance to the city limits.

When the calvacade reached the smooth turnpike it gathered speed. A pace of 30 miles an hour was maintained.

The pace through Newark was not slackened. The automobiles and ambulance took the side streets to avoid the heavy downtown traffic.

The small towns then flew past. Plainfield was reached at 9:55 and then the ambulance turned into the last lap.

Queen Quits Tour

White Sulphur Springs and Atlantic City would be notified of her majesty's indisposition.

The queen only a few days ago eliminated her proposed trip to North Carolina and Florida upon receipts of a message from King Ferdinand pleading with her to "come home before Christmas."

Frequent published stories that the king was suffering from cancer have alarmed her majesty.

The queen cabled to Roumania asking for full particulars regardiing the true physical condition of the king. The reply, unrevealed in detail, led to the sudden decision of her majesty that she must return home.

—Tells Sad News in Indianapolis.

With a tremble in her voice, Queen Marie told the guests at the Columbia club in Indianapolis that she had heard "unfortunate news that has made her very sad."

"I feel that this may be my farewell talk to the American people," Queen Marie said. "I have heard a most distressing piece of news. I am so full of emotion that I can hardy speak coherently. I deeply regret that my trip in your beautiful country is to be terminated so suddenly. I want to tell the Americans how much I love to be with them and appreciate their hospitality. I always want them to remember me. I do not know whether I will be able to come back to America but I hope and hope that I may."

Princess is Unnerved.

Another worry which weighed on the mind of Queen Marie was the physical condition of Princess Ileana.

Still unnerved from a close escape from serious injury when the roadster she was driving collided with a heavy motor truck in the road from Chicago to Indianapolis, the pretty princess was confined to bed today with a trained nurse in attendance.

"But —He Felt No Better For That"

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

It is said that the potentialities of the wood-pulp industry in Alaska are tremendous.

FIVE ARE ILL AFTER EATING "POISON MEAL"

FIEND SOUGHT

Police Await State Experts' Analyzation of Food.

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Professor Henry Meyer of Wellesley college, his wife, and three children were battling for their lives today as police waited at the state house for experts to analyze parts of a "poison meal" and furnish a clue to the trail of a fiend, who, authorities are convinced, attempted a wholesale poisoning.

Something that each member of the family ate for breakfast yesterday contained the poison that so nearly carried death with it.

Today Professor Meyer groaned from his sick bed that he knew of no enemy who would attempt so monstrous a crime.

Mrs. Meyer prepared the breakfast, the maid being away. She served orange juice, cooked cereal, scrambled eggs, toast and coffee. Parts of each of these dishes today were under the microscope at the state health department.

Vancleve Meyer, 9, and Antoinette, 10, were at school and the professor was enroute to Boston when the members of the family were seized with a deadly nausea. Answering a call from Antoinette's school, Mrs. Meyer was attacked enroute and could hardly guide the automobile. Mrs. Meyer collapsed when Vancleve staggered in to be followed by the father. Only Vancleve was able to crawl to the telephone and summon aid.

TWO MEN HURT WHEN TROLLEY CAR RUNS AWAY

Jumps Track on Steep Hill Near Batavia.

SPUR LINE WRECK

Operator and Lone Passenger Seriously Injured.

BATAVIA, Ohio, Nov. 18.—Two men narrowly escaped death near here today when a trolley car of the Georgetown and Portsmouth spur line jumped the tracks while going down a steep hill near here and was practically demolished.

Fred Moore, operator of the car, and Dale Demaris, 19, the only passenger, were both seriously injured in the crash, according to first reports reaching here.

Demaris was suffering from an arm broken in four different places and possible internal injuries, it was said, while Moore, also thought to have sustained internal injuries was reported to be badly cut and bruised.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Wednesday's late reaction was carried over into the early trading in the stock market today. The professionals poured out a heavy volume of offerings of United States Steel, General Motors and other pivotal stocks, in an effort to force a lower range of prices for the market as a whole. But these offerings were well taken and the market displayed considerable resistance to price smashing.

A decline of 25 to 30 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil completed the "first round" of country wide price cuts forecasted about a month ago, and the direct result of which is expected to be a corresponding decline in crude oil production. The mid-western gasoline markets were weak, with prices down about a quarter-cent a gallon.

Heavy trading in the Standard Oil of New Jersey rights took place simultaneously with the decline in the market price of the stock to 41¼, the lowest price on the move. Lower prices were also quoted for Phillips, Marland, Skelly, Shell Union and other prominent oil shares.

Compilations showing a good increase in railroad net earnings were exhibited in the financial district, but trading in the railroad shares was comparatively light.

The race for market leadership between U. S. Steel and General Motors was won by the latter, which also extended its price "spread" to 3 points above its rival. Stewart Warner continued its advance to above 68, and Pullman was active at a slightly higher range of prices.

Jurors Hear Woman

leave her house, mount her mule and follow a rickety wagon that went in the direction of De Russey's lane. She followed long enough to learn that the wagon was empty and did not contain any of her corn.

It was while returning home through the lane that she came upon the three persons near the now famous crab-apple tree.

Q—When you got to the tree did you get off the mule?

A—Yes, and tied the mule to a cedar tree.

Q—What, if anything, did you hear?

A—I heard mumbling voices. They kept coming closer and closer.

Q—What did you hear them say?

A—I heard some one say: "How do you explain these letters?"

"Then I heard: 'God damn it, let go.' Then I heard the wind going out of some one. Then I heard some one scream. Then there was a flash light from here to there (illustrated) and something glittered.

Q—Then did you hear a woman's voice.

A—I heard a shot and a woman said: 'Henry, easy, easy, easy, Henry.' Then there was a shot and something fell to the ground. Then a woman was screaming.

Points Out Accused.

Q.—What did you do.

A.—I ran for my mule and jumped on it. I stubbed my toe on a stump while I ran.

Q.—That was when you lost your moccasin.

A.—Yes, then came shots — bang, bang, bang. I was on my mule, by this time.

Q.—Then what did you do.

A.—I went home and sat down and began thinking about my corn. And thinking about those shots I said to myself, "there is something wrong." So I went back and tied my mule to the tree and I heard something like a screech and then I got off my mule and the moon was shining very bright. Then I looked and saw a gray haired woman was on her knees doing something with her hands.

Q.—And have you identified that woman.

A.—Yes, Mrs. Hall.

A.—Yes, Henry Stevens.

Q.—Do you see in this courtroom any persons you saw that night.

A.—Yes.

Q.—Point them out.

She then identified Mrs. Hall and her brothers.

Hushed Silence in Courtroom.

The courtroom, packed far beyond its capacity, was held in hushed silence by Mrs. Gibson's story.

As she told of seeing Mrs. Hall kneeling and weeping, Mrs. Hall raised her gloved hand to her face, then dropped it, and clenched it into a fist. Her lips worked nervously.

He did not drop his gaze, however, holding his head high, his eyes on the witness.

Defense Attorney Case asked the identity of a person standing near Salome Cerrenner, Mrs. Gibson's aged mother, who is to be a witness for the defense against her daughter. Simpson told Case it was a police officer put there in Case "you (Case) have planned for her to cry out while this woman is testifying."

"I object to this," shouted Case.

"Oh, well," said Simpson nonchalantly, "he is there to preserve order."

Offered Bribe, She Says.

Prosecutor Simpson then took a picture of Felix Di Martini, who for several months after the murder, was Mrs. Hall's private detective and asked the woman lying on the bed if she had ever seen him before.

"Yes," said Mrs. Gibson, "he came to my window and said: 'I will pay you to keep your mouth out of this.' I banged my gun on the floor and told him to get out of the house.

"Why did you bang the gun down?" Simpson inquired.

While Mrs. Gibson was giving her dramatic testimony in a setting more strange than ever witnessed in a court room Henry De La Bruyerre Carpender, cousin of the three defendants also charged with murder, but not on trial now, was brought into court from the jail tunnel and was seated near Henry Stevens.

Stenographer Reads Testimony.

Simpson asked the jurors if they had heard all of Mrs. Gibson's testimony, some of which was given in a weak, barely audible voice. One of the jurors said he did not. So the prosecutor asked Judge Charles W. Parker, who is sitting on the case, with Judge Frank L. Cleary, if he would instruct the court stenographer to read the testimony to the 12 men.

Judge Parker instructed the stenographer to do so. While the stenographer was monotonously reading the questions and answers, Mrs. Gibson asked the nurse to prop her up a little and she wiped her perspiring forehead with a handkerchief. Then she closed her tired eyes. In profile her face might have been that of a dead woman. An occasional movement of her hands, once brown with heavy work, now gray with hospital pallor, indicated she was really alive, but very weak.

Witness Cross-examined.

Case's examination was conducted in a considerate tone. He asked his question slowly.

Q.—Mrs. Gibson, do you know Mr. Ferd David (Middlesex county detective)?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Do you remember one evening when he requested you to go over what you did that night?

A.—They didn't ask me to do nothing. I went over the same thing all over again.

Q.—You remember that evening?

A.—Yes. It was the night after Clifford Hayes was arrested.

Hayes is the chap who four years ago was accused of the murder by Raymond Schneider who with Pearl Bahmer found the bodies of Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills in De Russey's lane on Saturday morning, Sept. 16, thirty-six hours after the slaying.

Fails To Shake Her Story.

Q.—Is it a fact that you returned to the scene in the day light of the next day?

A.—No, I did not. I didn't go back until I went with David.

Case asked her if she knew George Seidle. She said she did. Case asked her if she ever told him she "would like to tell a certain story."

She hesitated and then replied:

"Oh yes, I remember. He said to me: 'How much will you take for two mules?'"

Case switched quickly to another question.

Q.—Did you tell Mr. Taller and Mr. David that while you were riding along De Russey's lane that you did not get off the mule, but rode straight home after hearing the shots?

A.—No.

Mrs. Gibson seemed to be getting weak at this point.

Dr. Charles Snyder, the young physician in attendance, took her temperature.

Her temperature was 102.4.

The sick woman shook her head from side to side as Case tried time and again to get her to say that she tried to get George Seidle to corroborate her story of what she saw in the lane on the night of the murders.

"I did not," she reiterated with each shake of her head.

Nurse, Doctor at Bedside.

Attendants carried the sick woman from the ambulance into the courtroom.

She was carried up the circular steps to the second floor and into the courtroom where she was laid carefully on the bed. A hush pervaded the courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson was lifted from the stretcher and placed upon the bed. Two uniformed policemen stood guard.

Mrs. Gibson tried to raise her head and turn so that she could get a view of Mrs. Hall and her brothers. She could not, however, and sank back limply on the pillows. She was deathly pale.

Witness' Bed Turned Around.

The bed was turned around so that Mrs. Gibson's feet pointed at the witness stand. The back of Mrs. Gibson's head faced the spectators leaning over their chairs in the chapel-like courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson seemed on the verge of collapse. Her eyes blinked in the lights over the judge's bench.

Mrs. Hall looked straight ahead.

Mrs. Gibson lay on a white bed, a nurse and a doctor beside her, should she need restoratives in the event of collapse.

She was deathy white. All that showed over the sheets was her head, wrapped in a white towel.

"The state herewith produces a witness and asks to have her sworn in," said Prosecutor Alexander Simpson as soon as court was convened.

The Bible was brought over to the bedside and she took the oath.

Voice Barely Heard.

Mrs. Gibson's voice could barely be heard. She seemed to talk with an effort, as if her pain-racked body was calling upon all her resources.

Simpson asked his questions very gently.

The aisles of the court room and all standing room were jammed. A hospital atmosphere hung over the whole place, an atmosphere heavy with drama.

Mrs. Hall's face was inscrutable as she watched the strange sight of the witness, who might die at any time, testifying. Henry Stevens fists were clenched as he strained to catch Mrs. Gibson's low replies.

The court stenographer stood at the foot of her bed, repeating the low replies of the invalid so that the jury might get every word.

Several of the elderly jurors stood up, hands cupped to ears, to catch her testimony.

Her voice seemed to gain slightly in strength as she continued.

"Naaman, The Leper," Sermon Topic at Baptist Church.

CROWD ATTENDS

Miss Jean Mackey Sings at Wednesday Night Meet.

"God can be found only in God's stipulated way," declared Rev. Mel Morris in a sermon that deeply impressed one of the largest week-day crowds yet attending the First Baptist church revival last evening. "People there are who would go so far but refuse finishing the distance separating them," he said. "But the Almighty demands implicit obedience." His subject was "Naaman, the Leper."

Augmenting the attendance were many persons from other church congregations of the city.

Restored to their former health, Rev. and Mrs. A. H. O'Brien resumed active work during the service. Following a period of lay-prayers the former directed a lively testimony before the preaching period in which the old and young vied in expressions of religious experience.

With even more fervor than during her other appearances Miss Jean Mackey, one of the two famed Mackey sisters of New Cumberland, W. Va., directed the preliminary musical services in which finally the entire assemblage took part. Thus a fitting background for the evangelist's message was formed.

Miss Mackey sang with telling effect, "Alone With Thee," by Eaton, which she interpreted with such a clarity as to compel numerous repetitions by request of her hearers. "I want nothing more than to be a soul winner for Jesus" she interpolated during its rendition "and never do I want singing to be a business with me."

In lieu of a personal testimony Harry Chilton, the church chorister, sang "Only a Sinner."

"Though Naaman was as great as the world could make him, and as successful as he could ever hope to be he was handicapped by leprosy," said Rev. Mr. Morris. "And men now are similarly incapacitated by the leprosy of sin which may be profanity, idolatry, impurity, robbery or the flames of iniquity."

"The High Cost of Sin" will be Rev. Mr. Morris' sermon topic tonight. Miss Mackey will sing at the services.

"Hugh Laughlin Jubilee Day" Observed at Luncheon.

A songfest featured the luncheon of the Kiwanis club in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today, in observance of "Hugh Laughlin Jubilee Day."

In addition to group singing and chorus numbers from the glee club, a solo, "Caroline," was rendered by John Golden. Claire Chambers was the accompanist.

At the close of the program, members of the club presented Prof. Laughlin with a large bouquet. The presentation speech was made by W. A. Weaver.

The club will entertain Review-Tribune newsboys at the Thanksgiving Day football game between the East Liverpool and Wellsville high schools at Patterson Field, it was announced.

Next Thursday being a holiday, there will be no meeting of the club.

Mrs. Gibson were gravely concerned over the danger involved, as she recently underwent a blood transfusion and is suffering from a complication of diseases. She declared, however, that no matter what the cost to herself, she would testify that she saw Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, under the crabapple tree in De Russey's lane on the night when the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were murdered.

Save Her Physical Resources.

Mrs. Gibson's trip was made slowly so that all her physical resources would be at her command when she arrived here.

The ambulance left the Jersey city hospital at 7:42 and had reached Plainfield, N. J., 15 miles from Somerville, at 9:55.

Two automobiles, one carrying newspaperman, the other Inspector John J. Underwood and Captain Harry Walsh, slowly nosed their way from the hospital grounds.

Many early city workers paused in their rush for the tubes and stood in awe. They had heard who was in the ambulance.

Several automobiles followed the ambulance to the city limits.

When the calvacade reached the smooth turnpike it gathered speed. A pace of 30 miles an hour was maintained.

The pace through Newark was not slackened. The automobiles and ambulance took the side streets to avoid the heavy downtown traffic.

The small towns then flew past. Plainfield was reached at 9:55 and then the ambulance turned into the last lap.

White Sulphur Springs and Atlantic City would be notified of her majesty's indisposition.

The queen only a few days ago eliminated her proposed trip to North Carolina and Florida upon receipts of a message from King Ferdinand pleading with her to "come home before Christmas."

Frequent published stories that the king was suffering from cancer have alarmed her majesty.

The queen cabled to Roumania asking for full particulars regarding the true physical condition of the king. The reply, unrevealed in detail, led to the sudden decision of her majesty that she must return home.

Tells Sad News in Indianapolis.

With a tremble in her voice, Queen Marie told the guests at the Columbia club in Indianapolis that she had heard "unfortunate news that has made her very sad."

"I feel that this may be my farewell talk to the American people," Queen Marie said. "I have heard a most distressing piece of news. I am so full of emotion that I can hardy speak coherently. I deeply regret that my trip in your beautiful country is to be terminated so suddenly. I want to tell the Americans how much I love to be with them and appreciate their hospitality. I always want them to remember me. I do not know whether I will be able to come back to America but I hope and hope that I may."

Princess is Unnerved.

Another worry which weighed on the mind of Queen Marie was the physical condition of Princess Ileana.

Still unnerved from a close escape from serious injury when the roadster she was driving collided with a heavy motor truck in the road from Chicago to Indianapolis, the pretty princess was confined to bed today with a trained nurse in attendance.

"But —He Felt No Better For That"

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

It is said that the potentialities of the wood-pulp industry in Alaska are tremendous.

FIVE ARE ILL AFTER EATING "POISON MEAL"

FIEND SOUGHT

Police Await State Experts' Analyzation of Food.

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Professor Henry Meyer of Wellesley college, his wife, and three children were battling for their lives today as police waited at the state house for experts to analyze parts of a "poison meal" and furnish a clue to the trail of a fiend, who, authorities are convinced, attempted a wholesale poisoning.

Something that each member of the family ate for breakfast yesterday contained the poison that so nearly carried death with it.

Today Professor Meyer groaned from his sick bed that he knew of no enemy who would attempt so monstrous a crime.

Mrs. Meyer prepared the breakfast, the maid being away. She served orange juice, cooked cereal, scrambled eggs, toast and coffee. Parts of each of these dishes today were under the microscope at the state health department.

Vancleve Meyer, 9, and Antoinette, 10, were at school and the professor was enroute to Boston when the members of the family were seized with a deadly nausea. Answering a call from Antoinette's school, Mrs. Meyer was attacked enroute and could hardly guide the automobile. Mrs. Meyer collapsed when Vancleve staggered in to be followed by the father. Only Vancleve was able to crawl to the telephone and summon aid.

BAD COLD? TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS TONIGHT

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

New Zealand High Commissioner Balks On American Films

LONDON.—"I regret that 85 per cent of New Zealand's automobiles come from the United States,' says Sir James Parr, new High Commissioner for New Zealand to Great Britain.

"I regret to see all this money going into the pockets of the foreigner—money which should go into British pockets."

Parr was appealing for trade within the British Empire, coupled with a demand for subsidies that would check outside competition. He was particularly emphatic against the use of American films in New Zealand.

"We have pictures in every New Zealand township," he said, "but what do the people think when they see these American pictures? Ninety-five per cent of the pictures shown in New Zealand are from America. Do you want to see us Americanized?"

CRIPPLED BY PAINFUL SWELLING IN HIS LEG

As he came in from work in the evening, a garage worker of Shreveport, La., felt a pain in his left leg above the ankle, and the next morning it was badly swollen and worried him when walking.

"I applied Sloan's Liniment to it that night," he writes, "and the pain nearly all left. I applied it again and the next day the swelling was all gone. For all aches and pains I find nothing to beat Sloan's Liniment. I keep a bottle in the garage where I work."

Sloan's gets results because it stirs up the body's own powers to heal itself. Just put it on, and at once you can feel the fresh blood tingling through the sick tissues. Inflammation, swelling, stiffness, pain, begin to give way at once.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

NICK SCACCUTO IS HELD FOR KENNEY DEATH

He and Another Man are Grand Jury Hold-overs.

27 COUNTS TRIED

But One Not Guilty Verdict Returned by Jurors.

Out of the 27 indictments returned by the September grand jury, against 21 persons, all cases have been tried and disposed of with the exception of two, including Nick Scaccuto, of Wellsville, who is a prisoner in the county jail at Lisbon on a charge of murder in the connection with the death of Patrolman James Kenney.

The other case involves Arch Barnett, against whom two indictments were returned, one for malicious damage to property and another for placing dynamite.

Scaccuto, as well as Barnett, has entered a plea of not guilty. Scaccuto was the first arrest of importance made following the slaying of Patrolman Kenney last May. He was found six hours or more after the slaying in a house near Central park with bullet wounds in his body. Since his arrest half a dozen others were taken in connection with the crime, all of whom are out of jail, either on bond or as a result of dismissal of charges against them.

In a single case of trial by jury there was a verdict of not guilty returned, this in the action against John DeSarra, of Wellsville, indicted for obtaining insurance money by false pretense. DeSarra was freed yesterday morning.

In all other cases, pleas of guilty or verdicts of guilty have been obtained by Prosecutor Brookes.

Because of the non-appearance of an important witness for the state, the Barnett case was not called for trial yesterday, although a bench warrant was issued for the arrest of the witness. Jurors, who remained within call during the day, were excused at 4 o'clock.

Dominic Andretta alone was given a suspended sentence. Andretta entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery and was fined $100 and costs and committed to the county jail for 10 days. Andretta was permitted to go home on account of sickness. A few days later the court suspended the jail sentence but the fine stood.

Majority of those indicted were young men, most of whom were sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory, while a few went to the penitentiary.

LADIES OF ELKS ENTERTAIN HERE

Mrs. L. T. Hine Hostess.

Mrs. L. T. Hine entertained eight guests Tuesday evening at an informal party in Maple Villa. Bridge followed a three-course dinner.

Lady Helpers to Meet.

TODAY

PERHAPS a way to spend the $250,000,000 could be found, better than giving it back. Part of that money would put this nation's fighting air fleet ahead of all others. At present, we have none.

MUCH could be done with all or part of $250,000,000, more romantic and exciting than giving it back.

But nothing, probably, could be done that would suit better those that will get the money.

ONCE the Greeks of ancient days voted on this proposition: "Shall a very large sum be divided among the free citizens of Athens, or shall the money be used for the national defense?"

MUSSOLINI, as is usual with one-man power, now combats treachery in his own ranks, as well as conspiracy at home and abroad.

A high fascist official, close to the king who "reigns" under Mussolini's sheltering hand, is moved from his important position.

Should Mussolini become suspicious of the royal family, that might necessitate another usual step in the course of dictatorship, and put Mussolini on the throne.

Cromwell kept away from it, and his power lasted until long after he died. It might have been better for his family and England had he gone the whole way from "Lord Protector" to "king by the grace of God."

Salineville Church To Launch Revival Services on Sunday

Special evangelistic services will begin in the Church of Christ on Sunday evening, Nov. 21, conducted by the minister, Rev. A. M. Jenkins. Sermon subjects are as follows: Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, "The Church of Christ;" Monday, "A Dream of a Christless World;" Tuesday, "Pure and Undefiled Religion;" Wednesday, "What Christianity Does for Man;" Thursday, "The Glory of Christianity;" Friday, "God's Cry to Mankind," "God's Love for Mankind," "The Gospel of Christ," "The Song of Redemption," "The Child Jesus, "The Obedient Savior," "The Overcoming Christ," "God's Command to Us," "What Christ Sees in You," "The Uplifting Christ."

Mrs. John Rice is recovering from an operation which she underwent in the St. Vincent hospital in Cleveland.

William Davis, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, was taken to the Salem Clinic City hospital Wednesday, where he underwent an X-ray examination.

Mrs. Marie Lindsay and daughter Mary of Youngstown returned home after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. P. S. Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pinney of Chester have concluded a visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson, and were accompanied home by Mrs. Anderson for a week's visit.

Mrs. Vance Vasbinder and daughter, Donna Jean, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Madison, at Minerva.

Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Grandmother's

Old Stone Cookie Jar

Tested Recipes by

Winifred S. Carter

ONE of the things you love to remember is your childhood visits to Grandmother's old stone cookie jar.

I don't believe you ever were disappointed, for although Grandmother had to stand and roll and cut cookies she always found time to do it.

Today we have an easier, quicker way to make cookies than Grandmother had. The cookies for which recipes are printed below call for no rolling and cutting. I am sure they will gladden the heart of any child.

Save these recipes. When you see how quick and easy it is to make them you will not let your children grow up without Mother's wholesome Crisco Cookies to remember and tell their children about.

Nut Wafer Cookies

Sliced instead of rolled and cut. Use Crisco and see how easy it is to cream with sugar. Crisco keeps so long you can double this recipe and keep the rolls in the ice box a long time, slicing and baking as you need them. Grease your pans with Crisco and you won't need to wash them between bakings.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
1½ cups melted Crisco
1 teaspoon salt
5 cups pastry flour, sifted twice
3 eggs, well beaten
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon or other spices
1 cup chopped nuts (blanched almonds are best)

Cream Crisco with sugar. Add eggs slowly, mixing thoroughly. Add nuts. Then dry ingredients sifted together twice. Shape into roll about 2½ to 3 inches in diameter. Put in Criscoed pan in ice box overnight. When ready to bake, slice and bake in hot oven (425° F.). Makes about 75 cookies.

Grandmother's Old Fashioned Ginger Cookies

Made the new easy way—no tiresome rolling or cutting. Crisco is always ready for instant use and is easy to cream with the brown sugar. Grease your pans with Crisco and drop the cookies far enough apart to keep them round. Crisco saves washing the pans between bakings, so you won't mind using a lot of them.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup molasses
½ cup Crisco
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk
4½ cups pastry flour

Cream Crisco, sugar and salt together. Add molasses and ginger, then egg. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Add, mix thoroughly. Last add flour. Drop teaspoonfuls of the batter on a Criscoed baking pan and bake in a medium oven (375° F.). Makes about 50 cookies.

WELLSVILLE MURDER SUSPECT, IN JAIL, AWAITS TRIAL

NICK SCACCUTO IS HELD FOR KENNEY DEATH

He and Another Man are Grand Jury Hold-overs.

27 COUNTS TRIED

But One Not Guilty Verdict Returned by Jurors.

Out of the 27 indictments returned by the September grand jury, against 21 persons, all cases have been tried and disposed of with the exception of two, including Nick Scaccuto, of Wellsville, who is a prisoner in the county jail at Lisbon on a charge of murder in the connection with the death of Patrolman James Kenney.

The other case involves Arch Barnett, against whom two indictments were returned, one for malicious damage to property and another for placing dynamite.

Scaccuto, as well as Barnett, has entered a plea of not guilty. Scaccuto was the first arrest of importance made following the slaying of Patrolman Kenney last May. He was found six hours or more after the slaying in a house near Central park with bullet wounds in his body. Since his arrest half a dozen others were taken in connection with the crime, all of whom are out of jail, either on bond or as a result of dismissal of charges against them.

In a single case of trial by jury there was a verdict of not guilty returned, this in the action against John DeSarra, of Wellsville, indicted for obtaining insurance money by false pretense. DeSarra was freed yesterday morning.

In all other cases, pleas of guilty or verdicts of guilty have been obtained by Prosecutor Brookes.

Because of the non-appearance of an important witness for the state, the Barnett case was not called for trial yesterday, although a bench warrant was issued for the arrest of the witness. Jurors, who remained within call during the day, were excused at 4 o'clock.

Dominic Andretta alone was given a suspended sentence. Andretta entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery and was fined $100 and costs and committed to the county jail for 10 days. Andretta was permitted to go home on account of sickness. A few days later the court suspended the jail sentence but the fine stood.

Majority of those indicted were young men, most of whom were sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory, while a few went to the penitentiary.

LADIES OF ELKS ENTERTAIN HERE

Mrs. Walter Brookes and Mrs. Fred Martin will be hostesses to Ladies of the Elks this afternoon at a party in the Elks' home. Five hundred will be the chief diversion. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

Lady Helpers to Meet.

PERHAPS a way to spend the $250,000,000 could be found, better than giving it back. Part of that money would put this nation's fighting air fleet ahead of all others. At present, we have none.

MUCH could be done with all or part of $250,000,000, more romantic and exciting than giving it back.

But nothing, probably, could be done that would suit better those that will get the money.

ONCE the Greeks of ancient days voted on this proposition: "Shall a very large sum be divided among the free citizens of Athens, or shall the money be used for the national defense?"

MUSSOLINI, as is usual with one-man power, now combats treachery in his own ranks, as well as conspiracy at home and abroad.

A high fascist official, close to the king who "reigns" under Mussolini's sheltering hand, is moved from his important position.

Should Mussolini become suspicious of the royal family, that might necessitate another usual step in the course of dictatorship, and put Mussolini on the throne.

Cromwell kept away from it, and his power lasted until long after he died. It might have been better for his family and England had he gone the whole way from "Lord Protector" to "king by the grace of God."

Tested Recipes by

Winifred S. Carter

ONE of the things you love to remember is your childhood visits to Grandmother's old stone cookie jar.

I don't believe you ever were disappointed, for although Grandmother had to stand and roll and cut cookies she always found time to do it.

Today we have an easier, quicker way to make cookies than Grandmother had. The cookies for which recipes are printed below call for no rolling and cutting. I am sure they will gladden the heart of any child.

Save these recipes. When you see how quick and easy it is to make them you will not let your children grow up without Mother's wholesome Crisco Cookies to remember and tell their children about.

Nut Wafer Cookies

Sliced instead of rolled and cut. Use Crisco and see how easy it is to cream with sugar. Crisco keeps so long you can double this recipe and keep the rolls in the ice box a long time, slicing and baking as you need them. Grease your pans with Crisco and you won't need to wash them between bakings.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
1½ cups melted Crisco
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups pastry flour, sifted twice
3 eggs, well beaten
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon or other spices
1 cup chopped nuts (blanched almonds are best)

Cream Crisco with sugar. Add eggs slowly, mixing thoroughly. Add nuts. Then dry ingredients sifted together twice. Shape into roll about 2½ to 3 inches in diameter. Put in Criscoed pan in ice box overnight. When ready to bake, slice and bake in hot oven (425° F.). Makes about 75 cookies.

Grandmother's Old Fashioned Ginger Cookies

Made the new easy way—no tiresome rolling or cutting. Crisco is always ready for instant use and is easy to cream with the brown sugar. Grease your pans with Crisco and drop the cookies far enough apart to keep them round. Crisco saves washing the pans between bakings, so you won't mind using a lot of them.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup molasses
½ cup Crisco
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk
4½ cups pastry flour

Cream Crisco, sugar and salt together. Add molasses and ginger, then egg. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Add, mix thoroughly. Last add flour. Drop teaspoonfuls of the batter on a Criscoed baking pan and bake in a medium oven (375° F.). Makes about 50 cookies.

PENN HIGHWAY TO BE IMPROVED

Work is Scheduled to Begin on 12 Mile Stretch Next Spring.

Weirton and Holliday's Cove will be connected up with good roads to other communities before another year passes, according to highway projects now under construction and contemplated for next spring.

Announcement has been made that the 12 mile stretch of the William Penn highway, known for many years as the Steubenville pike, will probably be improved by the Pennsylvania state highway department during the next year. This road is almost direct from Steubenville through Weirton and Holliday's Cove to Pittsburgh, but is almost impassable during rainy weather.

West Virginia is building a boulevard from Weirton to the Washington county line. Allegheny county is completing the portion of the highway within her boundaries to the Washington county line. Through Washington county, however, the road does not pass through any large towns and for that reason no appropriation could be secured from the county for the work. There has been an effort to interest the state highway department in the road project for the past year. Final assurance that the state will undertake to build that section is of great interest to this section, as the road when once completed will be of national importance. It is understood that the western end, beyond Steubenville will eventually be completed by the state of Ohio to connect with the National Road at Cambridge.

Although delayed by rainy weather the paving of the Weirton Hill road from the general office of the Weirton Steel company to a point several hundred feet east of the intersection with the old King's creek pike is going ahead steadily and is expected to be completed about December 1.

The road is being sub-graded, cement is being poured, bricks are being laid and the road is being widened by berms. The road when completed will be 24 feet wide on the straight stretches and 30 feet wide on the turns. The contractor, Fred Robinson of New Cumberland, is taking advantage of every hour of good weather and has been working his men on Sunday when possible in order to expedite the work. About 1500 feet of concrete remain to be poured

Why We Become Weak, Run-Down If Glands Fail

THOUSANDS drag through life always tired and worn-out, suffering with loss of energy and vitality, and fail to recognize the cause of their trouble. Medical authorities now know the trouble as "asthenia," and claim it is caused by an unbalanced glandular system or weakened glands.

Glands exert a remarkable influence on health, strength and vitality. When the glands function normally they supply their vitalizing hormones (or secretions) which are essential to physical well-being. And when the glands fail to function, health fails.

Now, glandular treatment, which is endorsed by eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe, is being used by thousands of men and women to help overcome a weakened, worn-out, run-down, exhausted condition, and to retain the strength, vigor and vitality that are the natural benefits resulting from a normal glandular system.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen is prepared in convenient tablet form, for both men and women. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

FARM LEADERS ATTEND MEET

Columbiana County Farm Bureau leaders headed by County Agent Floyd Lower attended a Co-operative Institute Tuesday and Wednesday at the Canton Y. M. C. A. building. Farm bureau leaders from Stark, Mahoning, Carroll and Summit counties also attended.

The institute is one of a series that have been scheduled to be held throughout Ohio during the present season having to do with co-operative marketing and distributing. These institutes are in charge of C. C. Blair, field representative of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation of Ohio, with offices at Columbus.

Principal addresses at the Canton meeting were made by T. G. Foster, of the rural economics department of the college of agriculture of Ohio State University; J. C. Hedges, county agent of Mahoning, and who largely assisted in the formation of the Akron Produce Growers' Market, and M. R. Moomaw, president of the Stark County Milk Producers' association.

$10,000 DAMAGE ACTION FILED

A. W. Mercer, who in a petition filed in common pleas court, declares that before he was injured he was making an average of $40 in the junk business, is now seeking $10,000 damages from the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

Mercer declares on October 3, 1925 he was driving a horse and wagon on Mulberry street, East End, East Liverpool, and when crossing the railroad the southerly gate was let down, which struck him on the head, back and spine, causing permanent injuries. The petition declares he was unable to follow his business for 40 weeks. The petition was filed by Attorney Frank H. Hoover of East Liverpool.

RECORD NUMBER OF CASES FILED

At the rate new actions are being filed in common pleas court, it is the opinion of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine that the current month will estasblish a new high record since he assumed office last year.

Since Nov. 1st up to the close of business Wednesday evening 70 new actions had been placed on the appearance docket. Should this ratio be maintained during the balance of the month, it is believed that more than 100 cases will have been made a matter of record. About one third of the actions so far filed are petitions in divorce. Not in several years have 100 cases been filed within a single month.

SUPPORT ORDER ISSUED BY COURT

Although an action in divorce is pending in common pleas court against him, Samuel C. Myler was taken before Judge Lodge Riddle yesterday and given a hearing on a charge of non support preferred against him by his wife, Gladys M. Myler. Myler was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter. After he pleaded guilty, he arranged to post a bond of $300 that he would pay his wife $6 every week, payments to be made every other week for the support of his minor child. A workhouse sentence was suspended by the court.

Released from Jail.

O. C. Jenkins who has been confined in the county jail in default of $300 fine and costs assessed in a liquor charge against him has been paroled upon the recommendation of the committing court.

Steve Skossuss of Salem, who has also been in the county jail in default of a $300 liquor fine has also been paroled, and he also was released from custody Wednesday afternoon.

Property Sales Ordered.

In two actions pending in common pleas court against George Little, the court has rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiffs, and an order of appraisement and sale of property has been decreed in both suits.

James S. Rinehart and others was given a judgment for $70.66 and costs against the defendant, while the Moore Furniture Co., Inc., was given a judgment for $60.18 and costs. The actions have been pending since March 1924.

Sciatic-Neuritis

The disease is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain. The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, all pain and soreness. Continue until the Neuritis has entirely disappeared and you are able to work and rest in comfort once again. J. D. Holloway keeps Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 in stock all the time and sells lots of it.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic cases of Piles are often entirely absorbed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Mathews Medicine Store, J. D. Holloway, Herche's Drug Store sells lots of it.

Sciatic-Neuritis

The disease is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain. The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, all pain and soreness. Continue until the Neuritis has entirely disappeared and you are able to work and rest in comfort once again. J. D. Holloway keeps Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 in stock all the time and sells lots of it.

No More Piles

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy.

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you have not heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, C. G. Anderson and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic cases of Piles are often entirely absorbed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Mathews Medicine Store, J. D. Holloway, Herche's Drug Store sells lots of it.

Rickard and Fugazy War For Control of Championship Bouts

Tunney May Desert Tex For Scrap With Sharkey Or Delaney

Latter Pair is Bound to Fugazy, Former by Preference and the Latter by Contract; Maloney and Persson Lined up on Other Side.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Gene Tunney, miffed in his best ball room manner over "certain features" in connection with Tex Rickard's pronotion of the recent unpleasantness in Philadelphia, may desert the czar in favor of the crown prince, nee Humbert J. Fugazy, it was learned on excellent authority today.

Under Fugazy's auspices, Tunney's opponent would be either Jack Sharkey, who exposed the colored gentleman in the wood pile, or Jack Delaney, (light heavyweight champion) and the bout, if held will take place at the polo grounds during the later summer months.

Meantime, Delaney and Sharkey may meet for the right to challenge for the title. Both are bound to Fugazy, the former by preference and the latter by contract, expiring February 1.

Frame Fight Plans.

Within the last twenty-four hours, Tunney and Fugazy have conferred on the matter and a second and final meeting is due on November 30. A definite proposition will be made to Tunney then and, if Rickard can't better it, Tunney will go over to the other camp. It is said that Tunney has been impressed by a statement from Fugazy that a lease on the polo grounds is as good as his.

These are the latest developments in the Rickard versus Fugazy war for the control of championship matches.

Sharkey, Delaney and Harry Wills are with Fugazy. Rickard has Jimmy Maloney and Harry Persson while Paul Berlenbach and Tunney are on the fence, ready to go the way the cat jumps.

From a lieutenant of Tunney's it was learned today that the champion's grievances against Rickard are "unimportant" and that Gene feels quite friendly toward the promoter. He, however, is not disposed to let friendship interfere with business and, if Fugazy can show him more money with Delaney or Sharkey than Rickard can with Persson or Maloney or Joe Windmill, the champion won't hesitate a split-second by his handsome wrist watch.

Nothing Against Tex.

Tunney declined to comment on his grievances growing out of the Dempsey match beyond saying that he still considered himself obligated to Rickard, but not to the extent of accepting the worst of two offers.

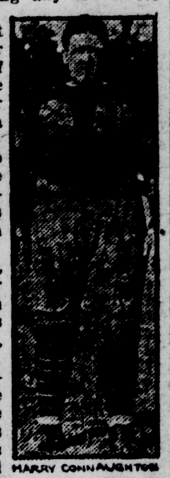
"I'd be a dolt if I didn't listen to all proposals," he said in a flow of $10 words. "I've really nothing against Rickard at all and, if he makes the best offer, I'll be glad to fight under his direction. But Fugazy has proved himself an upright, reputable promoter and most certainly I will give his offer every consideration. I will be able to tell you better just what that offer is after November 30."

ALL-AMERICAN GRID CANDIDATES

By Norman C. Brown.

Early in the season "Babe" Connaughton, of Georgetown University, drew attention because of his huge bulk. He's the biggest player in collegiate football. But right now he draws the limelight because of his playing, which demands consideration of his case in naming any All-American grid team.

DIEHL



HARRY CONNAUGHTON

This giant guard is amazingly fast for his size and gets down under punts like an end. He has a habit of breaking through the opposing line and dropping the backs in their tracks. He paved the way for a Georgetown touchdown against Syracuse by beating the other players to a fumbled ball in the third period. He is given credit for holding the Pittsburg ball carriers in three attempts of that team to put over a touchdown from the one-yard line.

Bucknell, coached by the wizard, Charles Moran, usually presents one or two possibilities for All-American team consideration and this year one of its outstanding stars is "Wally" Diehl, backfield luminary.

Bucknell has enjoyed a rather hectic season, victories over George Washington and Lehigh (impressive ones) being intermingled with defeats at the hands of the Haskell Indians and Villanova. But Diehl has played a prominent part in the success the team has enjoyed. He is a triple threat man and an unusually brilliant passer.

It's a Wow of a Game Chicago Ice Fans Say As Hawks Beat Pats

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.— Seven thousand fans who squeezed their way into the Coliseum for the debut of professional hockey in Chicago, were of one mind today concerning the merits of the great Canadian sport. It's a wow of a game.

Hay, Irwin, Fraser and McVeigh for Chicago, while Day scored the lone tally for the Canucks. McVeigh's shot was from center ice. The St. Pat's could not penetrate Hughie Lehman's goal tending.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

In adopting the principle of keeping the club in front of you in the back swing the player must keep in mind one thing: The wrists must not be permitted too much freedom with the club while it is being swept back. The club should have just the least trace of drag up to the point where the arms go on up with it. And even then the wrists must not be allowed to "break" the club over quickly and sharply. The club should continue its "drag" feeling until it goes over at the top, at which time, of course, it can drag no longer. Here, however, it should take up all the slack in the wrists—that is, draw them up against the natural pull of the club when it gets to its stopping place at the top. If the wrist are permitted to break sharply in the back swing they will miss this "taking up of the slack" at the top. Either way will work, but the way I have described gives the best results.

U. S. TO REFUND $350,000,000 TO TAXPAYERS

Will be Distributed March 15 and June 15.

BUSINESS BOOM

Expected to Stimulate Government Revenue Next Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Unless government finances undergo an unexpected upset in the next six weeks, the treasury will be prepared to hand back to federal taxpayers close to $350,000,000 as a credit against taxes payable March 15 and June 15, it was learned today. This is an increase of $100,000,000 over the original Mellon estimate.

Government economic experts declared that the tax refund, which will chiefly benefit large taxpayers and corporations, coupled with the apparently certainty of a permanent reduction of rates by the 70th congress, will have a favorable reaction on general business next year. This will still further stimulate government revenue during the year beginning July 1, 1927.

Treasury officials, on the basis of a close calculation of government revenue made since the president announced the credit policy, estimate collections of income and profits taxes at approximately $2,300,000,000 for the calendar year 1926. This exceeds the estimate by $300,000,000.

Secretary of the treasury Mellon has already announced that the government can stand a credit-refund of fifteen per cent of the 1926 collection. On the basis of heavier receipts it is now possible that the rate may be boosted still higher.

The first American fraternity of which there is any record was the "Flat Hat Club" that appeared at the College of William and Mary in 1750, and continued in existence until after 1772.

MURPHY WINS BY 17,258 IN CONGRESS RACE

J. F. Nolan, Democrat, Polls 19,341 Votes.

OFFICIAL REPORT

Tabulation in Contest for State Senator Also Announced.

Official majority of Congressman Frank Murphy, Republican, of Steubenville, over his Democratic opponent, Attorney John F. Nolan, a fellow townsman, in the contest for congressman, was 17,258, according to figures announced today.

Five counties making up the district gave the Republican nominee 36,599 votes against 19,341 votes cast for Nolan, who made the race on a "wet" platform. The official vote was delayed by the failure of the Harrison county election board to certify it returns.

In the race for state senator in the 20th-22nd district, Attorney Harry M. Carpenter, Steubenville, Republican candidate for re-election polled 30,193 votes; Earl Lewis, St. Clairsville, also Republican, 26,793, and G. J. Barrett, Bellaire, Democrat, 16,947 votes.

Seats for Riviera Tennis Tournament Not in Big Demand

NICE, France.—Seats in the Center Court at the Riviera Tennis Tournaments this season will not be as hard to obtain as they were last season, according to promoters.

Last year Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills were attractions that filled the stands to capacity but this year organizers are worried as to whether they will be able to pay expenses.

"Didi" Viasto, second French tennis "ace," will probably be conspicuous by her absence as well as Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish star. Mlle. Contastavlos, who has always given Didi a close battle for second honors is also out of this year's matches.

Since Suzanne has turned professional the promoters hope that some interest in tennis will be shown this year as a new French champion is in order to take the place of the now dethroned Lenglen.

Numerous dark horses are rumored to be entered in the fifteen tournaments scheduled in and around Nice this winter.

U. S. TO REFUND $350,000,000 TO TAXPAYERS

Will be Distributed March 15 and June 15.

BUSINESS BOOM

Expected to Stimulate Government Revenue Next Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Unless government finances undergo an unexpected upset in the next six weeks, the treasury will be prepared to hand back to federal taxpayers close to $350,000,000 as a credit against taxes payable March 15 and June 15, it was learned today. This is an increase of $100,000,000 over the original Mellon estimate.

Government economic experts declared that the tax refund, which will chiefly benefit large taxpayers and corporations, coupled with the apparently certainty of a permanent reduction of rates by the 70th congress, will have a favorable reaction on general business next year. This will still further stimulate government revenue during the year beginning July 1, 1927.

Treasury officials, on the basis of a close calculation of government revenue made since the president announced the credit policy, estimate collections of income and profits taxes at approximately $2,300,000,000 for the calendar year 1926. This exceeds the estimate by $300,000,000.

Secretary of the treasury Mellon has already announced that the government can stand a credit-refund of fifteen per cent of the 1926 collection. On the basis of heavier receipts it is now possible that the rate may be boosted still higher.

The first American fraternity of which there is any record was the "Flat Hat Club" that appeared at the College of William and Mary in 1750, and continued in existence until after 1772.

Liquid air, when in a container, has a slightly bluish color.

OFFICIAL REPORT

Tabulation in Contest for State Senator Also Announced.

Official majority of Congressman Frank Murphy, Republican, of Steubenville, over his Democratic opponent, Attorney John F. Nolan, a fellow townsman, in the contest for congressman, was 17,258, according to figures announced today.

Five counties making up the district gave the Republican nominee 36,599 votes against 19,341 votes cast for Nolan, who made the race on a "wet" platform. The official vote was delayed by the failure of the Harrison county election board to certify it returns.

In the race for state senator in the 20th-22nd district, Attorney Harry M. Carpenter, Steubenville, Republican candidate for re-election polled 30,193 votes; Earl Lewis, St. Clairsville, also Republican, 26,793, and G. J. Barrett, Bellaire, Democrat, 16,947 votes.

Seats for Riviera Tennis Tournament Not in Big Demand

NICE, France.—Seats in the Center Court at the Riviera Tennis Tournaments this season will not be as hard to obtain as they were last season, according to promoters.

Last year Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills were attractions that filled the stands to capacity but this year organizers are worried as to whether they will be able to pay expenses.

"Didi" Viasto, second French tennis "ace," will probably be conspicuous by her absence as well as Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish star. Mlle. Contastavlos, who has always given Didi a close battle for second honors is also out of this year's matches.

Since Suzanne has turned professional the promoters hope that some interest in tennis will be shown this year as a new French champion is in order to take the place of the now dethroned Lenglen.

Numerous dark horses are rumored to be entered in the fifteen tournaments scheduled in and around Nice this winter.

DO CHRISTMAS MAILING EARLY, M'CLURE URGES

Postmaster Reminds That Yuletide is Five Weeks Away.

PREPAY POSTAGE

Pack all Articles Carefully in Strong Containers.

"Do your Christmas mailing early."

This was the advice given today by Postmaster J. Edwin McClure, who reminded postal patrons that the yuletide is a little more than five weeks away.

Christmas mail, according to the statement, is fraught with a sentimental value. To give its full measure of happiness and cheer it should be carefully prepared and reach the addresses in time to be in keeping with the purpose for which it is sent. To this end the co-operation of mailers is necessary.

"Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address or box or rural route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and Wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong, durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label or indorsement reading: Contents: Merchandise. Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary, together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled or indorsed in printing are subject to postage at the letter rate.

"Limit of Weight and Size—Parcels may not exceed 84 inches in length and girth combined nor weigh more than 70 pounds if for delivery within the first, second, or third zone, or 50 pounds in any other zone.

"Permissible Additions and Inclosures—Percel may be marked, 'Do not open until Christmas,' this being permitted in order to encourage early mailing.

"Written greetings such as Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, With best wishes, and names, numbers, or symbols for the purpose of description may be inclosed with third or fourth class (parcel-post' mail Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

"Do not inclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcels to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first-class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third or fourth class rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels.

"Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

"Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured.

"Where to Mail Parcels—Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations."

BEBE DANIELS' IN "FLIRT" ROLE

Although Bebe Daniels' latest comedy, "The Campus Flirt," which comes to the Ceramic today for a three-day run, was made in California, it's really a Texas "native son" picture. Three of the company's most prominent members first saw the light of day in the Lone Star state. Dallas contributed three and Houston one.

Dainty Bebe Daniels, Paramount star—has the best part of her career, that of a spoiled, pampered child of wealth who attempts to reign as queen at a democratic American college by using upstage methods—was born in Dallas.

Charlie Paddock, in motion pictures for the first time, cast as the "world's fastest human," also lays claim to Dallas as his home town. Then there's James Hall, fresh from the New York stage, still flushed with success in musical comedy. He plays opposite Miss Daniels as the2campus hero. Hall calls Dallas the place of his birth.

El Brendel is the third featured member of the cast.

All exteriors for the comedy were made on the University of California campus under Director Clarence Badger's eagle eye.

KEEP COUGHS OUT OF "DANGER ZONE"

Coughing irritates the throat and makes you cough more. The more you cough, the harder it is to stop. And a cough threatens serious trouble if you let inflammation get into your bronchial tubes. It may spread into the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops coughs quickly — almost instantly in spasmodic attacks. And it does far more; it brings lasting relief as its soothing, healing powers are absorbed deep down into the bronchial tubes, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth as it loosens up the tightness of congestion. It stimulates expectoration—Natures helpful plan for getting rid of phlegm and germs. Absorbed into the membranes themselves, this concentrated, hospital-proved medicine not only stops your cough but corrects the cause. And that is why relief is immediate and lasting.

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—60c; twice as much, $1.00. 4a5c

DO CHRISTMAS MAILING EARLY, M'CLURE URGES

Postmaster Reminds That Yuletide is Five Weeks Away.

PREPAY POSTAGE

Pack all Articles Carefully in Strong Containers.

"Do your Christmas mailing early." This was the advice given today by Postmaster J. Edwin McClure, who reminded postal patrons that the yuletide is a little more than five weeks away.

Christmas mail, according to the statement, is fraught with a sentimental value. To give its full measure of happiness and cheer it should be carefully prepared and reach the addresses in time to be in keeping with the purpose for which it is sent. To this end the co-operation of mailers is necessary.

"Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address or box or rural route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and Wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong, durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label or indorsement reading: Contents: Merchandise. Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary, together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled or indorsed in printing are subject to postage at the letter rate.

"Limit of Weight and Size—Parcels may not exceed 84 inches in length and girth combined nor weigh more than 70 pounds if for delivery within the first, second, or third zone, or 50 pounds in any other zone.

"Permissible Additions and Inclosures—Percel may be marked, 'Do not open until Christmas,' this being permitted in order to encourage early mailing.

"Written greetings such as Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, With best wishes, and names, numbers, or symbols for the purpose of description may be inclosed with third or fourth class (parcel-post' mail Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

"Do not inclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcels to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first-class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third or fourth class rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels.

"Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

"Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured.

"Where to Mail Parcels—Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations."

BEBE DANIELS' IN "FLIRT" ROLE

Although Bebe Daniels' latest comedy, "The Campus Flirt," which comes to the Ceramic today for a three-day run, was made in California, it's really a Texas "native son" picture. Three of the company's most prominent members first saw the light of day in the Lone Star state. Dallas contributed three and Houston one.

Dainty Bebe Daniels, Paramount star—has the best part of her career, that of a spoiled, pampered child of wealth who attempts to reign as queen at a democratic American college by using upstage methods—was born in Dallas.

Charlie Paddock, in motion pictures for the first time, cast as the "world's fastest human," also lays claim to Dallas as his home town. Then ther's James Hall, fresh from the New York stage, still flushed with success in musical comedy. He plays opposite Miss Daniels as the2campus hero. Hall calls Dallas the place of his birth.

El Brendel is the third featured member of the cast.

All exteriors for the comedy were made on the University of California campus under Director Clarence Badger's eagle eye.

KEEP COUGHS OUT OF "DANGER ZONE"

Coughing irritates the throat and makes you cough more. The more you cough, the harder it is to stop. And a cough threatens serious trouble if you let inflammation get into your bronchial tubes. It may spread into the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops coughs quickly — almost instantly in spasmodic attacks. And it does far more; it brings lasting relief as its soothing, healing powers are absorbed deep down into the bronchial tubes, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth as it loosens up the tightness of congestion. It stimulates expectoration—Natures helpful plan for getting rid of phlegm and germs. Absorbed into the membranes themselves, this concentrated, hospital-proved medicine not only stops your cough but corrects the cause. And that is why relief is immediate and lasting.

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—60c; twice as much, $1.00. 4a2c

To Harness the Moon.
They'll Believe Foch.
Spending $250,000,000.
Mussolini's Power.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

PROF. GEORGES CLAUDE of Paris, inventor of synthetic ammonia, and a serious scientist, tells the French Academy of Science that he has found a cheap, efficient way to harness the ocean's tide power.

It is a complicated process, depending on ultilization of the ocean's temperatures, varying at different depths. The main thing is that such an invention would supply the one thing that men need above all others, power unlimited, cheap and forever.

WHEN your harness the tides you really harness the power of the moon, that with its constant pull of gravity, raises and lowers the ocean's water. Whether men are far enough advanced to deserve free power, use it well and not be made lazy by it, remains to be seen.

THERE arises a question of veracity between Marshal Foch and the King of Belgium. Foch says he persuaded King Albert not to let the Belgians retreat from the Yser. It is a fact that the king issued a proclamation, making any suggestion of retreat treason.

THE king says Foch had nothing to do with it. The general public will trust to Foch's memory. Kings have a license to forget that is not permitted to commoners. Anyhow, but for Foch, and his management of the war, there wouldn't be any King Albert. Some young Hohenzollern would be sitting on the Belgian throne, nicely over-stuffed, to make it comfortable for him.

THE treasury surplus this year will be far above $250,000,000, thanks to good management by President Coolidge and Mr. Mellon. And if you are an income tax payer on a fairly big scale it means good news to you, a rebate of as much as 15 per cent on what you paid last year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Ohio is the first state to come forward with a concrete assurance that President and Mrs. Coolidge will enjoy an approved Thanksgiving meal.

A large crate containing three very heavy, and very live, turkeys arrived at the White House this morning. The fowls were the gift of the Peoples National bank of Mt. Pleasant, Ohio.

Roumanian Party Will Take First Available Liner to Bucharest, Sailing Probably on Nov. 24.

BALKAN BEAUTY'S HEART IS HEAVY

Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington, White Sulphur Springs and Atlantic City Will be Notified of Indisposition.

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

ABOARD QUEEN MARIE'S SPECIAL TRAIN (In Louisville, Ky.) Nov. 18. — Queen Marie of Roumania today cut short her triumphal tour of America when she received word that the days of King Ferdinand were numbered.

"My heart is heavy," said her majesty with tears in her eyes, "I have heard unfortunate news. I must go home. I am a soldier and duty takes precedence."

Transportation Obstacles.

The Balkan queen will take the first available liner that may carry her back to Bucharest where she may nurse her beloved monarch. It is planned at present for her to sail from New York on the Berengaria, November 24. She had previously expected to sail December 11.

A cable in cipher from abroad reporting the grave condition of the king of Roumania caused her majesty to make the unexpected announcement. A state of temporary chaos reigned aboard the royal Roumanian special as sheaves of telegraphs were dispatched, cancelling all social engagements.

Queen Marie is ready to return to Roumania immediately but transportation obstacles may delay her. The remainder of her American itinerary will be curtailed. It was undecided today whether she would set out for New York instantly and await the sailing of a suitable liner or if she would carry out the schedule as far as Detroit which would include a visit to Cincinnati.

Cancel Trip to Grid Game.

The proposed trip of Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas to the Army-Navy football game in Chicago, November 27, was cancelled today.

Charles Ammon, 12, and his brother, Floyd, 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace J. Ammon, 1753 Dresden avenue, were wounded at 6 o'clock last night when an old 32-caliber pistol was accidently discharged while they were playing with it on the Dresden avenue dump.

The weapon and several shells were found, the police were told, on the dump. One bullet passed through the palm of the younger boy's right hand and lodged in the fleshy part of his elder brother's right forearm.

The two boys were taken to the City hospital, where their wounds were dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall. Later they were removed to their home.

Lisbon Boy Shot Through Hand; Chum Held for Hearing

Henry Bradbury, 17, is being held in the Lisbon jail upon a charge of shooting with intent to kill in connection with an alleged attempted hold-up of Harry Rigdon, who resides in Gander Flats, east of Lisbon, yesterday.

Bradbury is said to have entered the home and commanded Rigdon to "gimme that money or I'll shoot you." Rigdon was shot through the right hand.

Bradbury was arrested upon information furnished by Dayton Rigdon before Justice M. K. Zimerman. He has not yet been given a hearing.

DR. DELPHINO, STEUBENVILLE, SHOT TO DEATH

SLAIN IN AUTO

Hounded and Driven From One City to Another.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—Hounded and driven from one city to another for years by enemies who have not been identified, Dr. J. L. Delphino, 51, fell a victim to their bullets on a lonely road near here early this morning.

The physician's body was found slumped to the floor of his automobile, riddled with bullets from an automatic pistol at Bate's bridge, across the river from here.

Dr. Delphino came here from Martins Ferry about a year ago. His arrival was unostentatious but his ability as a practitioner soon brought him local fame. He admitted to friends that he had fled from one town to another in the hope of evading enemies but did not explain the circumstances. He said he left Martins Ferry when he felt fears for his life.

Sought Divorce.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—A divorce suit on file in common pleas court here today showed Dr. D. L. Delphino, former Martins Ferry physician, who was mysteriously slain near Follansbee, W. Va., early today, was seeking separation from what officials say was his first wife.

Dr. Delphino was arrested for pointing firearms and was also implicated in several civil suits here, according to local court attaches.

Boy is Alleged To Have Wielded Knife Upon Girl

Police today were investigating an assault alleged to have been made by Thomas Taylor, 11 year old East End boy, upon Wilma Archer, also 11, foster daughter of Mrs. Betty Archer, Monaca street, on Pennsylvania avenue about 6 o'clock last evening.

The child, according to relatives was on her way to the Archer home, when the Taylor boy stopped her and called her a vile name. The girl struck him and the boy, it is alleged, attacked her with a penknife, inflicting a deep wound on her left forearm.

The girl was taken to the city hospital in an automobile where the wound was dressed by Dr. R. J. Marshall. She was then removed to her home.

ARREST SUSPECT IN TRAIN HOLD-UP

TOLEDO, Nov. 18.—A youth, resembling the description of one of three brothers, alleged to have held up an express train in the Siskiyou mountains of Oregon in 1923, killing three trainmen and a mail clerk, was taken into custody here today.

Detectives said that bertillon pictures show a marked resemblance between the young man and the fugitive. His fingerprints are being checked.

PLACED ON BED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

COURTHOUSE, SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18. — Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her two brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, were at the scene of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills on the night of September 14, 1922, Mrs. Jane Gibson, the state's star witness, testified from a bed in the Somerset county courthouse today.

Testimony Creates Sensation.

Mrs. Gibson had been brought here in an ambulance from a Jersey City hospital and placed on a little white bed in front of the jurors so that she could relate her "eye-witness" story.

It was her first courtroom declaration that Henry Stevens was present at the murder scene and created a sensation. Henry Stevens clinched his hands over the arms of his chair.

When Mrs. Gibson asserted that she saw Mrs. Hall at the scene of the double murder, Prosecutor Alexander Simpson said to the defendant: "Will you please remove your hat?"

Mrs. Hall removed her black hat.

"Is that the woman you saw at the scene?" Simpson asked, his voice resounding through the courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson turned her towel-bandaged head and in a low but clear voice said:

"Yes, that is the woman I saw that night."

Mrs. Gibson then identified both Willie and Henry Stevens as the other two she saw at the scene of the murder.

"Have you any doubt as to their identity?" Simpson asked. Mrs. Gibson paused dramatically, and then said:

Story of Fatal Night.

Prosecutor Simpson had asked Mrs. Gibson what she had seen in the lane on the fatal night after she had gone out on her Jenny mule in search of thieves who had been stealing her corn. Some time after 9 o'clock the barking of her dog quartered in the barn of her 61-acre farm, three miles from the scene, had caused her to

"I'VE GOT TO TELL WHAT I KNOW-AFTER THAT I DON'T CARE," SAYS WITNESS, IN DANGER OF DEATH, ON WAY TO HALL-MILLS MURDER TRIAL

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18.—"I'm all right—I'm going to be strong. Don't you worry about me. I've got to tell what I know of this case—after that I don't care."

These are the words of Mrs. Jane Gibson, who made a dramatic appearance in court here today as the state's star witness in the Hall-Mills murder trial. They were spoken to Police Inspector John J. Underwood, who with Captain Harry Walsh interviewed her in the Jersey City hospital where she has been seriously ill.

She came to the court house here this morning from Jersey City, 30 miles away, in an ambulance and against the advice of six doctors who have been attending her. They fear she might suffer a relapse which quite possibly could result in her death.

Overrules Doctor's Suggestions.

But she waved aside all suggestions that she remain in the hospital. She insisted she must come to Somerville and tell what she knows of the mysterious murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs Eleanor Mills. She is the only known "eye-witness" of the murders. She has identified the three defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, as the three persons she saw under the crab-apple tree in De Russey's lane on the night of Sept. 14, 1922. She is the state's vital witness.

It was feared a week or so ago that she would die and that her amazing story never would be told at the trial. Spectacular efforts were made by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson to have court transferred to her bedside in the hospital so that her testimony might be taken but the court advised a delay to see if her condition improved sufficiently to enable her to testify. Her progress, however, was very slow. She is suffering from a complication of diseases which, physicians say will ultimately result in her death. Only a few days ago she underwent a blood transfusion.

Excitement in Somerville.

The imminent appearance of Mrs. Gibson on the witness stand has figurately set Somerville on its ears. It is the one subject of conversation in this little town of 6,000 population. There was an undercurrent of suppressed excitement early today in the vicinity of the courthouse among the curious crowd waiting for the arrival of the ambulance bearing the famous witness.

Mrs. Gibson is taking all responsibility for leaving the Jersey City hospital. She willingly signed this statement:

"I, Jane Gibson, do hereby leave the Jersey City hospital of my own free will and do refuse further treatment against the advice of physicians and surgeons in charge and do also hereby release the said hospital from responsibility for any results which may follow such action on my part."

The ambulance which conveyed Mrs. Gibson from Jersey City to Somerville this morning also carried a doctor and a trained nurse. Preceding the ambulance was a motor car containing Inspector Underwood and two other police officials. They served as an advance guard of the ambulance. The trip was made slowly over the concrete roads.

A truck accompanying the ambulance carried a bed which will be set up in the courtroom. Lying in the bed, with a doctor and a nurse at her side, Mrs. Gibson will tell her story.

Racked with pain, Mrs. Gibson began the tedious journey with unflinching fortitude. The doctor and the nurse accompanied her, and Captain Walsh of the Jersey City police was in charge of the party.

Two motorcycle officers escorted the ambulance but rode in an automobile ahead. They discarded their motorcycles as doctors feared the noise of the machines would distract Mrs. Gibson.

The strange cavalcade proceeded slowly, to make the riding as smooth as possible.

Photographers were cautioned not to take any flashlight pictures of the state's star witness, and every precaution was taken to prevent other disturbances.

Funeral Services Are Held For Old Time Fiddler Champ

Funeral services for Richard W. Buxton, 78, winner of The Review-Tribune's old time fiddlers' contest last March, who died in the City hospital Tuesday morning after several weeks' illness, were conducted in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Villee, 910 St. George street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. J. O. Campbell, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, and Dr. J. G. Reinartz, of St. John's Lutheran church, were in charge. Burial was made in Riverview cemetery.

R. W. Buxton.

In the fiddlers' contest, Mr. Buxton was one of nearly a score of entrants not only from East Liverpool but also from Chester, Wellsville, Newell, Lisbon and Toronto. In addition to an engagement at the American theatre, he received a silver cup, furnished by Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer, through the Beers-Hanks Motor company, local Ford and Lincoln distributors.

He was born in 1848 in Washington county, Pa., about a mile from Patterson's Mill, the nearest postoffice. In 1872, at the age of 23, he and his wife and two children moved to the west, settling on a farm in the northern part of Missouri where he herded sheep and engaged in farming. Buxton had the distinction of being the only violinist in his neighborhood and often traveled 15 and 20 miles to play for dances.

The family lived in the west for about 35 years. About 21 years ago they came to East Liverpool where the husband and father followed the trade of carpenter until about four years ago.

Buxton regarded his violin as a companion. He began playing the fiddle when he was 10 years of age, taking lessons from a man who lived on a neighboring farm. The violin which he owned at the time of his death was made in Germany about 50 years ago.

Buxton, who made his home with his step-son, Dwight McBride, of Anderson boulevard, is survived by two sons and two daughters, David Buxton, Cleveland; Robert Buxton, Little Ferry, N. J., and Mrs. Anna Thomas, Cleveland, and Mrs. Margaret Villee, of this city.

60,000 Tourists Visit Vienna in One Month; Germans in Majority

VIENNA.—The largest number of tourists to visit Vienna in any month since the war came during September. In that thirty days, 60,084 tourists came to the city, which was 4,000 more than in August and 10,000 more than in the same month of last year.

Vienna, however, is one city of the world where the Americans did not come in larger numbers than any other nationality. There were 10,211 Germans in the September tourists, 6,785 Hungarians and Americans numbering only 1,836. There were 951 English visitors.

Q. How many members has the Society of Friends? N. S.

A. Numerically this is a small body, numbering only about 150,000 members in the world.

Q. Can fresh reindeer meat be bought in the States? C. D.

A. Reindeer meat exported from Alaska this fall for consumption in the States will soon be on sale and the prices will be reasonable. One leading reindeer company in Alaska expects to export at least 5,000 carcasses, and will export more if vessels with refrigeration facilities can be obtained for shipping the meat from Nome to Seattle.

Q. Please give some information about the Oregon Trail. R. S. H.

A. The Oregon Trail was an emigrant route, about 2,000 miles long, from Indepence, Missouri, to the Columbia river. Originally it was made in part by the Indians and trappers. A part of it was blazed by Verendrye in 1742, and the expedition of Lewis and Clark in 1804 made more of it known. Others who helped to establish the trail were W. P. Hunt, Robert Stuart, S. H. Long, W. H. Ashley, Smith, Jackson, and Sublette. Nathaniel J. Wyeth made the first continuous overland trip on record in 1832.

Q. How do bees keep warm during the winter? N. W.

A. A temperature of about 60 degrees is maintained. The heat is produced by physical exercise, humming and buzzing. It behooves beekeepers to protect the bees, as over-activity uses up vitality.

Q. Is Karakul a fur taken from an animal of that name or is it a trade name? W. R.

A. Karakul is the fur of sheep known as Karakul. The Karakul sheep takes its name from Kara Kul (Black Lake) a village in the Eastern Vokhara, a province of central Asia. The fur is taken from the young Karakul lambs when they are but a few days old, as the character of the curls deteriorates with age. The skins of prematurely born lambs have value as fur, but the ewes are not sacrificed to secure them.

Q. What does the stork signify when woven in Chinese rugs? T. A.

A. It is the emblem of longevity. The stork was thought to live to a fabulous age; at 600 years, being too old, it could only drink; and turned black after 1,000 or 2,000 years. A black stork in the design of the rug is particularly significant.

Q. What countries are represented at the 25th Annual International Exhibition at the Carnegie Institution, Pittsburgh? L. G.

A. The countries represented include: The United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Austria, Hungary, Poland Roumania, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Belgium and the Netherlands. There are 378 paintings shown; 272 are from Europe; 160 from America.

Q. How did Peary and his men keep their meat from freezing? W. N.

A. When away from base, each man carried his meat inside his shirt in order that the heat of his body might keep it from freezing.

Gives Advice to Expectant Mothers

"I ADVISE all expectant mothers to use Mother's Friend," writes Mrs. Wesley Miller, Hudson, Mich. "I have had nine children. With my first three I suffered for 24 hours. Beginning with the fourth I used Mother's Friend and was sick only 15 minutes. Since then I have had five and was only sick about 10 minutes with each."

Mother's Friend is the formula of an eminent physician and has been a positive blessing to thousands of expectant mothers for over three generations. Used daily, externally, it soothes the nerves and muscles as month follows month. Finally it makes childbirth a joy!

The mothers who praise Mother's Friend the most are those who did not use it with their first baby but through its use with the second, were able to realize its almost unbelievable results.

Mother! Insist on Mother's Friend—the same as used by our mothers and grandmothers—don't wait—start using tonight—and meanwhile write Bradfield Regulator Co., Dept. 34, Atlanta, Ga., for free valuable booklet "Motherhood and the Coming Baby" (sent in plain envelope). It tells how Mother's Friend can help you during expectancy and at childbirth. This booklet also tells you many other things you want to know. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all druggists—everywhere.

Is Your Child Thin and Weak?

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy, there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred per cent better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to insist on the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents at Mathews' Medicine Store, or any druggist. Thousands of boxes sold daily.

Shop Now, Mail Early

Christmas, bearing a message of good will, is but five weeks distant, Postmaster J. Edwin McClure reminds East Liverpool postal patrons today in suggesting the two-fold advantage in early mailing of Yuletide gifts.

In another column of today's Review-Tribune, the postoffice department calls attention to the importance of doing your Christmas mailing before the rush begins. Make certain that your parcels contain the complete address of the person for whom they are intended, and it is important all containers should be strong and durable. Otherwise they may go to the dead letter office.

The Christmas shopping season has opened. Holiday stocks are now on the shelves and in cases in East Liverpool's stores. Merchants and clerks are prepared to serve their patrons.

Prepare your gift list today. Then shop, wrap packages, post thereon the "Don't Open Until Christmas" suggestion, and mail at once. Clerks in stores and postoffices will appreciate your thoughtfulness, and the shopper and sender will avoid the confusion that inevitably results when Yuletide buying is deferred until the eleventh hour.

Shop now and mail early.

A Sage Prophesies

Thomas A. Edison, passing from inventive wizardry to prophecy, is always interesting. He has become the leading American sage. Here is his latest outgiving, as recorded by an interviewer in the Forum:

Cities in the future will be noisier than ever, but we shall become able to endure the racket by being mercifully deafened to it.

City traffic problems will be solved not by policemen but by engineers. There will be express streets and depressed cross streets.

Skyscrapers will be restricted because, by disgorging great masses of people at one time, they cause serious congestion of streets and transportation.

City roofs will be utilized as landing places for aircraft.

American cities sooner or later will tackle the problem of management as big business now does, and then there will be efficient city government.

Newspaper readers are probably familiar with all of these ideas. But it is reassuring to have the work of an eminent authority to support hopeful expectations.

The one novel suggestion is that regarding noise. Is there really no recourse for sensitive folk except deafness? Or cannot engineers soften and deaden the racket more and more hereafter, along lines already started?

Mr. Edison has probably allowed his own infirmity to color his thinking. He has regarded his own deafness as an asset, protecting him from hearing things he didn't want to hear. People who want to hear the pleasant sounds may yet overcome the unpleasant by direct attack instead of surrendering to them.

A Terrible Country

A speaker at a big gathering in Memphis told his associates that there was more money lost in the United States last year, as the result of crime, than the whole international war debt amounts to. He proceeded to give some other statistics along the same line, as follows:

"There are more divorces in this country every 11 days than there are in Great Britain in a year.

"There are six policemen killed in Chicago to every criminal who is killed.

"There are more criminals in the United States by 50,000 than there were soldiers in the combined armies at Waterloo."

Probably all true. And we might adduce just as striking statistics on the other side, to show what a decent, kindly, honest country this is—how many millions are given every year to charity, how many hundred thousand citizens serve in community compaigns, how many sober, law-abiding people there are doing their duty to God and man and taking fine care of their families, etc. But what's the use? One little question may suffice, not to condone the evil that America must plead guilty to, but to sum up and show the essential soundness of this land of contrasts:

Is there any other country in the world where the critics would rather live?

Discouraging Visitors

Not by a parliamentary law, but by an "order" issued by the secretary-general of the Fascist party, everybody in Italy is compelled to salute the Fascist banners by lifting the hat when then are carried through the streets in Blang Shirt processions.

"The order," says a cable from Rome, "is applicable to foreigners as well as to natives, and ignorance of it will not be considered an excuse for failure to heed it."

This is as if, in the United States, anyone who did not take off his hat to a Republican eagle or a Democratic rooster—according to which party was in power—when a political procession passed by should be thrown into jail.

That sort of thing may be all right for the Italian people. As for the rest of the world—people don't have to go to Italy. There are other countries where Americans can go and spend their money.

JUST NATURALLY BOILING OVER

As they tell the tale along Broadway, Mr. Jack Dempsey, acompanied by his impresario, Mr. Jack Kearns, was in a subway crush when a husky stranger trod with emphasis on the former champion's toes and violently rammed a sharp elbow into his short-ribs.

The intent was obvious. It plainly was not carelessness. The other person had chosen deliberately to be offensive.

As Mr. Dempsey winced with pain and rage, Mr. Kearns said:

"Jack, are you going to stand for that sort of stuff?"

He turned on his heel, overtook the departing offender, caught him by the coat lapel, swung him about and said to him:

"Say you! For two pins, three-fourth of the gate receipts, a guarantee of $800,000, and seventy-five per cent of the moving picture rights, It'd give you a wallop in the nose!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The world's biggest movie house now graces Times Square—a glowering block long structure that will at least convince critics the industry has outgrown its frightened and questioning infancy.

Merely to stand across the street and inspect it sends one home stiff necked. On its topmost peak is the largest glass ball in the world which binoculars will reveal as a clock. It is the ultimate word in movie swank—even to ushing.

Each maroon clad usher greets the customer with a brisk West Point salute. There are, for instance, 26 lounge rooms where patrons of the Bronx may meet relatives from far flung Brooklyn. In the balcony foyer stretches the longest rug in the world—costing more than the leading movie house in Ashtabula.

The semi-circular orchestra pit is fashioned like an elevator and by pressing button it appears and vanishes. Four physicians will be available at all times and if a hurry up operation is necessary the surgical equipment is at hand.

The lobby is five stories high and the battery of telephone booths requires some twenty operators. The atmosphere is to be very katish and as gilt and plushy as that of the opera. Evening dress will not be at all out of place.

Newer hotels are providing corkscrews in each bathroom. They are attached to the wall by chains and cannot be carried out. But the most gleeful touch of all is encompassed in a list of rules in the bathrooms of one hotel. One rule says: "It is against the law to mix or serve liquor brought into the hotel;" and down a little further is, "A charge of one dollar is made for furnishing cocktail and high ball glasses."

Night club popularity is by spurts. One bursts with life one week and the next may resemble the desolated Grand Central at 3 a. m. In some cases entertainers gain a following and in some others the head waiters draw the crowd. But the real smash is in collecting celebrities. The supper club crowd are those who feel in the swim of life if they are surrounded by stage folk, divorcees, renowned Lorcleis, cinema stars and the like In the popular places the floors are so small the majority "drink out" the dances. The most devoted patrons this winter seem to be those aging Romeos who enjoy company of diffident blondes with innumerable diamond sleeve bracelets. There is another impressive feature and that is the bored nonchalance of the gathering. Laughter is seldom heard.

There is that story of a night club customer given to boasting of his sudden wealth dredged from the films. He talked—for the benefit of other customers—of his de luxe Park Avenue apartment filled with rare paintings, gold service, bric-a-brac and rugs. Arriving home at 4 a. m. he found the apartment stripped bare. On a table was a pencil scrawl, "You were not boasting!"

As a peeping night club guest I saw my host settle a tab of $62. There were eight in the party and the refreshments consisted of a razor thin sandwich each, three quarts of table water and atrocious service.

In the washroom of the same club one of those impertinent young Tarzans who brush imaginery flecks from clothes was nearing disgust with night life. His car had been stolen from out front—the second he had lost this season.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Every Inch a Queen.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—When Marie of Rumania had concluded the official part of her visit to the United States and was about to leave Washington on her transcontinental tour she was asked whether during the remainder of her visit in this country she would continue to be a queen. The idea back of the question was that since royalty sometimes avails itself of the absurd fiction of an incognito, perhaps she would complete her journey as Mrs. Somebody from Bucharest.

"I am a queen," she replied, "and wherever I go I shall go as a queen."

There was no arrogance in the answer, nor in the manner in which it was made, and no boastfulness such as led Shakespeare's mad monarch to proclaim himself every inch a king. It was a simple statement of her status in the world, made in an altogether matter of fact way, serenely and with dignity.

Now that she is rounding out her stay in this country Americans are coming to know that she is indeed a queen—every inch a queen. She would be that if there were not a throne left in all the world, it is conceded. What it is that makes here that is, however, a question that is puzzling many people in this presumptively most democratic of democracies.

Is it the blood of all the Czars that flows through her veins? Is it the fact that she looks the part, and acts it? Is it that she has been for a decade the most talked about, the most written about, the best press-agented royalty of the Old World? Is it that she is co-ruler of a country almost exactly the size of New Mexico and not half as large as Texas, with a population not one-sixth that of the United States? Is it her beauty, her regal appearance? Is it her mentality? Is it because she personifies the dreams of those who believe in fairies—and in queens? Is it because she has studied the job and is good at it? Or is it because she is what, in some parts of this country, would be termed "a natural-born politician," with the gift for arousing, commanding, and holding a popular following?

Many Other Questions.

There are many other questions concerning Marie of Rumania that the people of the United States are asking each other or themselves. What is there about her, for instance, that led several hundred women in New York to scramble for the privilege of merely sitting for a second in the chair that she had occupied but briefly? It was a very ordinary chair. It was not a throne, unless she had made it such by her brief occupancy of it. It is understandable why women, and men, too, might want to sit on a real throne, but why the rush to sit in that New York piece of furniture? Will that chair now be preserved in the Metropolitan Museum, or will it be brought to Washington and enshrined in the National Museum?

What is there about her that led the Hobo Convention in Omaha to invite her to look in upon its deliberations? Or that led the head of a great labor union to say of her, "Labor would do better to devote its energies to defeating American politicians with bad records than to insulting a gracious and charming guest, at the behest of the propaganda bureau of the third internationale?"

What is her gift that enabled her to put instantly at his ease a Yankee President who had been worried for days about whether he should kiss the royal hand, thereby inviting or possibly inciting the disapproval of a voting proletariat, or merely shake it and murmur, a-la-Will Rogers, "How-do, queen?"

How or why did it come about that she could pass unscathed through the dirty mess of jealousies, bickerings, and controversies that featured the far west part of her travels? What is her habilament to which mud will not cling, no matter how viciously it may be flung?

Above all, what is it about her that has drawn thousands of people, never before curious-minded or gapers at tables, into the lines that have awaited the passing of her car or her train or her appearance in a public place?

In Washington, a man who had been next to a president of the United States, made himself one of a crowd that awaited her appearance on a balcony to wave her adieu to departing officials of this country. This man had contact with other royalties—a king and a queen and an heir apparent—and with many others of the world's notables. What led him to stand at the curb for a glimpse of Marie of Rumania?

A Queen Plus Personality.

Every one remembers the story of the princess who proved her royalty when she tossed in anguish on a bed where 20 mattresses superimposed a single pea. There are many qualities with which royalty may be endowed and which every human, be he king, peasant, or president, may own—consideration of others, graciousness, sincerity, poise—but there is one elusive quality which is indiscriminate in choosing its possessor, which may make a prince of a pauper, and which is the blessing bestowed by the fairy-godmother at the christening, and that is personality.

People applaud the home runs of Babe Ruth, the eighty-yard dashes of Red Grange, the courage that takes a young woman through the torment of the English Channel, and the High C of a child prima donna, but they flounder in a muddle of sentimental adjectives when they try to discuss the woman who is the talk of the fireside and table, the office and the street car. "She's got style, she's regular folks, she's—oh, she's wonderful!" they say.

That woman has brains, they say again. She has so much dignity back of her that she can afford to do and say what she pleases. In short, she has all the attributes of a queen plus personality.

Marie of Rumania has a genius for saying the right thing at the right time, and for making a personal friend out of each member of the huge mobs that gather to do her honor or to gratify individual curiosity. When she returned the greetings of Washingtonians by going out on the balcony of the Rumanian legation and saying, "You have made me very happy by coming here," and when next day she paused on the steps and said a simple but cordial good morning to the crowd that had gathered to see her leave for the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington and for a brief visit to Mount Vernon, she seemed to gather them all to her as if each were present at a private and personal meeting.

Who would not have enjoyed being a mere decoration at the dinner at the White House when the taciturn man who once was a freckled-faced, sandy-haired farmer boy seated on his right a royal queen who was the favorite grand daughter of Victoria and who is related to all the rulers of Europe!

Perhaps he said to her, "That's a pretty crown, but we don't believe in crowns in this country—they aren't economical."

Perhaps she said, "A crown becomes a queen!"

The Universal City "bank" hold what is believed to be the world's record for successive hold-ups—300 times in the last several years. It has figured in many movies.

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria —a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

"GREEN HAT" HERE NOV. 25

Ceramic Theatre Books Stage Version of Arlen's Novel.

A dash through a window into a room of a Deauville hotel by a brace of inquiring reporters, a shriek from a frightened maid, and "The Green Hat" will be off at the Ceramic theatre Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night; on a start that will undoubtedly place it among the season's blue ribbon awards.

"The Green Hat," as everyone who has mastered two syllables of the English language must know by this time, is Michael Arlen's dramatization of his internationally famous novel by the same name.

"The Green Hat" reveals expert workmanship in its stage form, just as it does between two covers. The more vital incidents have been handled with discretion. The episode in the Deauville hotel immediately after the suicide of Boyd Fenwick, Napier Harpenden's flat in London, 10 years later, a convent nursing home on the outskirts of Paris, and the library of Sutton Marle, where takes place that dramatic return of Iris, serve as settings. Those who know the story will recognize the locale, and what takes place. One unfamiliar with the narrative misses nothing by not having the happenings told here. There is no use taking the edge off an enjoyable evening by sketching ever so briefly the various steps in the unfolding of the grim tragedy of the "rotten Marches," and the thwarting of a love on the part of young Harpenden that, if undisturbed, might have written a vastly different chapter into two lives.

Responsible actuaries of the theatre report that its audiences delight in it, for it has been established as a national curiosity as something that one must see in order to be able to say that he or she has seen it.

A superb cast will present the play here, and A. H. Woods' general stag director, Norman Houston, has staged the production.

WOMAN APPLIES BRAKE; STOPS FATAL DASH ON STEEP GRADE

Mrs. David Steele Tells About Her Most Thrilling Experience.

Mrs. David Steele lives at 113 Smith street, Lafayette, Ind. In her narrative, teeming with interest, she recently told how she was on a steep hill and going down fast. And then all at once, like a miracle, she was saved by Tepee Herb Tonic.

"Yes, I believe that Tepee Herb Tonic actually saved my life for I was going down hill fast," says Mrs. Steele.

"For several years I had been in poor health and I couldn't find out what was the matter with me. I took a lot of medicine but nothing did me any good. Something just kept right on dragging me down. I felt weak and tired. I was constipated and I couldn't sleep soundly. I had a gnawing sensation in the pit of my stomach.

"Finally I began taking Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic and from that day to this I have steadily been regaining my health.

"My bowels are now regular. I have an appetite and I sleep very soundly. I'm stronger than I have been for two years.

"I am surely glad to recommend Tepee Herb Tonic. I know it will build up the body and cleanse the system."

Tepee Herb Tonic is Nature's medicine for sick systems through which stomach acids have spread like a baneful poison. Tepee Herb Tonic contains no mineral taint. It is purely vegetable. It is a food and tonic and it heals sore stomachs.

Tepee Herb Tonic is reconstructive and delicately adapted to stomach needs. It makes wealth by building health through the stomach, blood and nerves.

Tepee Herb Tonic may be had in East Liverpool at Carnahan's Drug Stores.

SYNOPSIS.

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. He is aimless and amiable. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming, rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers, in spite of his natural bashfulness, to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla, in his "comic little car" After a moment's hesitation she accepts his offer. As they ride he tries to "explain" himself.' He has money—enough—but is suffering from a bad case of "dual personality." He is obviously greatly bothered about something, some conflict with himself. She, for her part, tells that her name is Hester Kemble. She, like Julian, is from the East They overtake and pass the trucks bearing the rest of the troupe. As they stop for dinner, the others come in. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre;" Sadie, an ex-chorus girl trouper, and the rest of the cast. When the journey is resumed and La Jolla reached, Julian decides to remain with the troupe. It fascinates him.

CHAPTER FOUR.

That evening Julian Reed found himself afloat on the high seas of enchantment. The little stage, screened in canvas and skilfully lighted, formed a magical setting under the stars and the pepper trees for the brightly costumed harlequinade that opened the bill. Sadie danced and sang faintly as Columbine. The striding man called Lester made a fine figure. And Mr. J. Murry Watt, as a grotesque tragic Punchinello, stirred the pleasant and attentive audience. It was all romantically unreal. The second playlet was a tabloid medieval tragedy, set and played with atmosphere and with surprising completeness. Hestor Kemble appeared in a character role, as an old woman, indeed. He didn't recognize her during her first scene. They knew their work, these happy-go-lucky folk, all of them.

He stood, during the intermission, at the back, watching the audience; prosperous folk, the women prettily dressed, the men an easy self-assured lot; all aware of comfortable standing in the highly organized world into which he hadn't been able to fit himself. At every point of contact, even with this amusing troupe whose natures his own could sympathetically understand, he was an outsider.

A friendly hand slipped within his own, and he started. Sadie giggled.

"Pretty good house, isn't it?"

He inclined his head, forlornly.

"I've been counting up from the side. Ought to be three or four hundred in it for me. One or two more like this, and we'll shake down a bit of salary Saturday night."

"Oh, haven't you . . . ."

"Not regularly. Not lately. And we only get twenty a week, all of us, when we do get it."

"That's rather . . ."

"I'll say it is. If it wasn't for the outdoor life, I don't know as I'd . . ."

Voices raise suddenly behind them, men's voices, over by the ticket booth. People in the rear rows looked around. He felt Sadie's hand tighten on his arm.

"Oh, good Lord!" she muttered.

"What is it?"

"That man's cornered Murry at last. Well . . . . there goes the little old salary! That'll be about all!"

He heard the sonorous voice in subdued expostulation. He could see them now, dimly—a fat angry man chewing a cigar, and the majestic Mr. Watt in curling wig, doublet and hose, trying to lead him outside.

"Now!" cried the fat man, around his cigar. "We'll settle it right away now, or the car goes back to me."

Reed moved a little way toward them.

"What is it?" asked Sadie, still on his arm. "What are you going to do?"

"It seems sort of too bad . . . that man oughtn't to . . . ."

"But what . . . ." She saw his lips tighten nervously. Uncertaintly, watching him, she released his arm. He hesitated. He was always hesitating. Perhaps that was his thought, too, for suddenly, stiffening his shoulders in a curiously ineffectual way, he walked straight out through the gate where the two men had now disappeared into the night.

Both turned and stared.

"I assure you, my dear sir . . . ." Murray Watt began then.

"A little of your money'll do all the talking I want to hear,' said the fat man, shortly.

"It is very unfortunate . . ." Watt began again, this time including the obviously confused intruder.

"It'll be six hundred and a half," said the fat man.

"I'll pay it." He was rather quaintly dramatic about it.

"Yes, I will." He fumbled in his pocket and produced the book of traveler's checks, hurriedly counting through the remaining blue slips. "I've only got about three hundred and fifty left here . . . ."

"Six hundred and a half!"

"But"—he was getting out the letter of credit—"I can draw the rest in the morning down at the bank. Will that be all right?"

The only response the fat man made to that was to produce a fat fountain pen. And there, under the light of the entrance, Reed signed the checks and passed them over.

"See that youd on't try any early getaway in the morning," said the fat man, gruffly.

At that Mr. J. Murry Datt turned on him indignantly.

"Have the decency not to insult a gentleman!" he said, in splendid, measured tones.

The man grunted, and went away. Then the tall figure in the curled wig and the wine colored costume reached out two warm hands to his deliverer.

"My dear friend, the moment I saw you I said to myself, 'There is a gifted young man capable of understanding the fine arts." It has been my privilege in the past years to know many of those noble silent figures who have gladly come to the rescue of our calling in its darker hours. We live in a materialistic age, Mr. Reed. Art has no place to lay its weary head. It was not always so."

"Ah, indeed, my dear! Very well . . . Mr. Reed, I will give you my note in the morning. And we will say nothing about this little matter. It shall stand between us, as man to man. Not a syllable, Sadie!" With which he strode away.

The girl captured Reed's arm again, now, and led him back within the enclosure. He was pushing up his hair and wiping beads of sweat off his forehead. Sadie was very quiet.

But as they stood in the shadow, she remarked, in that very dry, guarded way of hers, "I wouldn't let Hester know about what you've done. Of course you know you're paying our salaries this week."

"Hester's funny about some things. Independent. She's a New Englander, you know. I came from Brockton myself. I know 'em. Gee, it was a swell thing to do!"

From the audience, rose a hum of interested chatter. Lights glowed softly behind the drawn curtains where the crew were setting the stage for the third and concluding play. Sadie found two of the little folding chairs and drew them together by the rear well where the ground was higher. "Let's sit down," she said. "We can see from here. Hester's wonderful in this play. You'll see."

He sank into one of the chairs. That odd incident had been more exciting than he had realized at the moment. Now his thoughts dwelt on it in retrospect. It was also rather stirring that the girl should slip her arm about his shoulders. She cuddled, apparently, as naturally and ffankly as she breathed. He nearly draw away, but sensed that such behavior might hurt her feelings and sat rather uncomfortably rigid hoping that none of these people who were moving back to their seats might observe them. He had never in his life before sat so conspicuously in public with a girl embracing him. But there wasn't much light on them; and it happened nobody gave them a glance.

"Hester isn't happy," she said now. He bent his head politely toward her.

"I haven't known her very long, of course. But I can see that. She's had a tough time. Did she tell you about it?"

"No. Nothing."

"It's just one of those cases . . . . a girl who could do anything if she could only get the chance. The theater business is full of 'em, you know.'

"I suppose it is."

"Oh, yes. And time's against her. A girl has to win her fight pretty quick in the theater. It isn't that she's old. She isn't thirty. And she could play young girls as long as she could walk. You'll see! But nobody in this business would believe that she could. They'd just look at her and say she wasn't the type. And that would be that. She'd had years of stock in the little cities. And she's played bits in New York, but it hasn't got her anywhere. Did she tell you how she happened to come out West?"

"I don't think she really told me anything."

"Humm! Of course. She wouldnt. She's funny. You know she's got a lot of fire in her. A good deal more than she knows herself. She'd suppress it. As long as she could. When she's most excited she's very quiet. Takes everything hard. Well—I was going to tell you—she had a little part in 'Thursday Out'—you know, the first of the Robert Johns plays . . . ."

"Oh, did she?"

"Sure. Played it all season in New York year before last. She's crazy about Robert Johns. His plays, I mean. Johns and Barrie. She knows exactly what she'd like to do, you know. She'd starve sooner than do a cheap play. She's the surest girl I ever knew about some things. She's got that sort of delicate quality. She was crazy to get into some of his other plays . . . you know, "I Wonder If They're True," or 'Hunger.' Simply crazy. But they wouldn't have her. It pretty nearly broke her heart, I think. Then a couple of months ago she read in the paper that the Interstellar people were going to do 'Hunger' in the pictures. You know they paid a hundred thousand dollars for it. It was in the papers."

"Why, yes, I . . . .'

"Well, what do you suppose Hester did?"

He spoke in such a remote voice that Sadie glanced up to see if he was listening, then smiled and gave him a hug. She chattered on.

"She had a little money left in a savings bank. She drew it all, came clear out here from New York, and tried to get into the picture. Lived in a furnished room in Hollywood and pestered them to death at the Interstellar. Oh, Hester'll fight, you know. She'll fight. But they wouldn't even make a test of her. She did pretty nearly starve, I think. And then she joined us. Twenty a week, when you get it, and ride on a truck and sleep in a tent. But I like the tent. I'll say that you do sleep!"

TWO MEN HURT WHEN TROLLEY CAR RUNS AWAY

Jumps Track on Steep Hill Near Batavia.

SPUR LINE WRECK

Operator and Lone Passenger Seriously Injured.

BATAVIA, Ohio, Nov. 18.—Two men narrowly escaped death near here today when a trolley car of the Georgetown and Portsmouth spur line jumped the tracks while going down a steep hill near here and was practically demolished.

Fred Moore, operator of the car, and Dale Demaris, 19, the only passenger, were both seriously injured in the crash, according to first reports reaching here.

Demaris was suffering from an arm broken in four different places and possible internal injuries, it was said, while Moore, also thought to have sustained internal injuries was reported to be badly cut and bruised.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Wednesday's late reaction was carried over into the early trading in the stock market today. The professionals poured out a heavy volume of offerings of United States Steel, General Motors and other pivotal stocks, in an effort to force a lower range of prices for the market as a whole. But these offerings were well taken and the market displayed considerable resistance to price smashing.

A decline of 25 to 30 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil completed the "first round" of country wide price-cuts forecasted about a month ago, and the direct result of which is expected to be a corresponding decline in crude oil production. The mid-western gasoline markets were weak, with prices down about a quarter-cent a gallon.

Heavy trading in the Standard Oil of New Jersey rights took place simultaneously with the decline in the market price of the stock to 414, the lowest price on the move. Lower prices were also quoted for Phillips, Marland, Skelly, Shell Union and other prominent oil shares.

Jurors Hear Woman

leave her house, mount her mule and follow a rickety wagon that went in the direction of De Russey's lane. She followed long enough to learn that the wagon was empty and did not contain any of her corn.

It was while returning home through the lane that she came upon the three persons near the now famous crab-apple tree.

Q—When you got to the tree did you get off the mule?

A—Yes, and tied the mule to a cedar tree.

Q—What, if anything, did you hear?

A—I heard mumbling voices. They kept coming closer and closer.

Q—What did you hear them say?

A—I heard some one say: "How do you explain these letters?"

"Then I heard: 'God damn it, let go.' Then I heard the wind going out of some one. Then I heard some one scream. Then there was a flash light from here to there (illustrated) and something glittered.

Q—Then did you hear a woman's voice.

A—I heard a shot and a woman said: 'Henry, easy, easy, easy, Henry.' Then there was a shot and something fell to the ground. Then a woman was screaming.

Points Out Accused.

Q.—What did you do.

A.—I ran for my mule and jumped on it. I stubbed my toe on a stump while I ran.

Q.—That was when you lost your moccasin.

A.—Yes, then came shots — bang, bang, bang. I was on my mule, by this time.

Q.—Then what did you do.

A.—I went home and sat down and began thinking about my corn. And thinking about those shots I said to myself, "there is something wrong." So I went back and tied my mule to the tree and I heard something like a screech and then I got off my mule and the moon was shining very bright. Then I looked and saw a gray haired woman was on her knees doing something with her hands.

Q.—And have you identified that woman.

A.—Yes, Mrs. Hall.

A.—Yes, Henry Stevens.

Q.—Do you see in this courtroom any persons you saw that night.

A.—Yes.

Q.—Point them out.

Hushed Silence in Courtroom.

The courtroom, packed far beyond its capacity, was held in hushed silence by Mrs. Gibson's story.

As she told of seeing Mrs. Hall kneeling and weeping, Mrs. Hall raised her gloved hand to her face, then dropped it, and clenched it into a fist. Her lips worked nervously.

He did not drop his gaze, however, holding his head high, his eyes on the witness.

Defense Attorney Case asked the identity of a person standing near Salome Cerrenner, Mrs. Gibson's aged mother, who is to be a witness for the defense against her daughter. Simpson told Case it was a police officer put there in Case "you (Case) have planned for her to cry out while this woman is testifying."

"I object to this," shouted Case.

"Oh, well," said Simpson nonchalantly, "he is there to preserve order."

Offered Bribe, She Says.

Prosecutor Simpson then took a picture of Felix Di Martini, who for several months after the murder, was Mrs. Hall's private detective and asked the woman lying on the bed if she had ever seen him before.

"Yes," said Mrs. Gibson, "he came to my window and said: 'I will pay you to keep your mouth out of this.' I banged my gun on the floor and told him to get out of the house.

"Why did you bang the gun down?" Simpson inquired.

While Mrs. Gibson was giving her dramatic testimony in a setting more strange than ever witnessed in a court room Henry De La Bruyerre Carpender, cousin of the three defendants also charged with murder, but not on trial now, was brought into court from the jail tunnel and was seated near Henry Stevens.

Stenographer Reads Testimony.

Simpson asked the jurors if they had heard all of Mrs. Gibson's testimony, some of which was given in a weak, barely audible voice. One of the jurors said he did not. So the prosecutor asked Judge Charles W. Parker, who is sitting on the case, with Judge Frank L. Cleary, if he would instruct the court stenographer to read the testimony to the 12 men.

Judge Parker instructed the stenographer to do so. While the stenographer was monotonously reading the questions and answers, Mrs. Gibson asked the nurse to prop her up a little and she wiped her perspiring forehead with a handkerchief. Then she closed her tired eyes. In profile her face might have been that of a dead woman. An occasional movement of her hands, once brown with heavy work, now gray with hospital pallor, indicated she was really alive, but very weak.

Witness Cross-examined.

Case's examination was conducted in a considerate tone. He asked his question slowly.

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Do you remember one evening when he requested you to go over what you did that night?

A.—They didn't ask me to do nothing. I went over the same thing all over again.

Q.—You remember that evening?

A.—Yes. It was the night after Clifford Hayes was arrested.

Hayes is the chap who four years ago was accused of the murder by Raymond Schneider who with Pearl Bahmer found the bodies of Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills in De Russey's lane on Saturday morning, Sept. 16, thirty-six hours after the slaying.

Fails To Shake Her Story.

Q.—Is it a fact that you returned to the scene in the day light of the next day?

A.—No, I did not. I didn't go back until I went with David.

Case asked her if she knew George Seidle. She said she did. Case asked her if she ever told him she "would like to tell a certain story."

She hesitated and then replied:

"Oh yes, I remember. He said to me: 'How much will you take for two mules?'

Case switched quickly to another question.

Q.—Did you tell Mr. Taller and Mr. David that while you were riding along De Russey's lane that you did not get off the mule, but rode straight home after hearing the shots?

A.—No.

Mrs. Gibson seemed to be getting weak at this point.

Dr. Charles Snyder, the young physician in attendance, took her temperature.

Her temperature was 102.4.

The sick woman shook her head from side to side as Case tried time and again to get her to say that she tried to get George Seidle to corroborate her story of what she saw in the lane on the night of the murders.

"I did not," she reiterated with each shake of her head.

Nurse, Doctor at Bedside.

Attendants carried the sick woman from the ambulance into the courtroom.

She was carried up the circular steps to the second floor and into the courtroom where she was laid carefully on the bed. A hush pervaded the courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson was lifted from the stretcher and placed upon the bed. Two uniformed policemen stood guard.

Mrs. Gibson tried to raise her head and turn so that she could get a view of Mrs. Hall and her brothers. She could not, however, and sank back limply on the pillows. She was deathly pale.

Witness' Bed Turned Around.

The bed was turned around so that Mrs. Gibson's feet pointed at the witness stand. The back of Mrs. Gibson's head faced the spectators leaning over their chairs in the chapel-like courtroom.

Mrs. Gibson seemed on the verge of collapse. Her eyes blinked in the lights over the judge's bench.

Mrs. Hall looked straight ahead.

She was deathy white. All that showed over the sheets was her head, wrapped in a white towel.

"The state herewith produces a witness and asks to have her sworn in," said Prosecutor Alexander Simpson as soon as court was convened.

The Bible was brought over to the bedside and she took the oath.

Voice Barely Heard.

Mrs. Gibson's voice could barely be heard. She seemed to talk with an effort, as if her pain-racked body was calling upon all her resources.

Simpson asked his questions very gently.

The aisles of the court room and all standing room were jammed. A hospital atmosphere hung over the whole place, an atmosphere heavy with drama.

Mrs. Hall's face was inscrutable as she watched the strange sight of the witness, who might die at any time, testifying. Henry Stevens fists were clenched as he strained to catch Mrs. Gibson's low replies.

Several of the elderly jurors stood up, hands cupped to ears, to catch her testimony.

"Naaman, The Leper," Sermon Topic at Baptist Church.

CROWD ATTENDS

Miss Jean Mackey Sings at Wednesday Night Meet.

"God can be found only in God's stipulated way," declared Rev. Mel Morris in a sermon that deeply impressed one of the largest week-day crowds yet attending the First Baptist church revival last evening. "People there are who would go so far but refuse finishing the distance separating them," he said. "But the Almighty demands implicit obedience." His subject was "Naaman, the Leper."

Augmenting the attendance were many persons from other church congregations of the city.

Restored to their former health, Rev. and Mrs. A. H. O'Brien resumed active work during the service. Following a period of lay-prayers the former directed a lively testimony before the preaching period in which the old and young vied in expressions of religious experience.

With even more fervor than during her other appearances Miss Jean Mackey, one of the two famed Mackey sisters of New Cumberland, W. Va., directed the preliminary musical services in which finally the entire assemblage took part. Thus a fitting background for the evangelist's message was formed.

Miss Mackey sang with telling effect, "Alone With Thee," by Eaton, which she interpreted with such a clarity as to compel numerous repetitions by request of her hearers. "I want nothing more than to be a soul winner for Jesus" she interpolated during its rendition "and never do I want singing to be a business with me."

In lieu of a personal testimony Harry Chilton, the church chorister, sang "Only a Sinner."

"Though Naaman was as great as the world could make him, and as successful as he could ever hope to be he was handicapped by leprosy," said Rev. Mr. Morris. "And men now are similarly incapacitated by the leprosy of sin which may be profanity, idolatry, impurity, robbery or the flames of iniquity."

"The High Cost of Sin" will be Rev. Mr. Morris' sermon topic tonight. Miss Mackey will sing at the services.

"Hugh Laughlin Jubilee Day" Observed at Luncheon.

A songfest featured the luncheon of the Kiwanis club in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today, in observance of "Hugh Laughlin Jubilee Day."

In addition to group singing and chorus numbers from the glee club, a solo, "Caroline," was rendered by John Golden. Claire Chambers was the accompanist.

At the close of the program, members of the club presented Prof. Laughlin with a large bouquet. The presentation speech was made by W. A. Weaver.

The club will entertain Review-Tribune newsboys at the Thanksgiving Day football game between the East Liverpool and Wellsville high schools at Patterson Field, it was announced.

Next Thursday being a holiday, there will be no meeting of the club.

Mrs. Gibson were gravely concerned over the danger involved, as she recently underwent a blood transfusion and is suffering from a complication of diseases. She declared, however, that no matter what the cost to herself, she would testify that she saw Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, under the crabapple tree in De Russey's lane on the night when the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were murdered.

Save Her Physical Resources.

Mrs. Gibson's trip was made slowly so that all her physical resources would be at her command when she arrived here.

Two automobiles, one carrying newspaperman, the other Inspector John J. Underwood and Captain Harry Walsh, slowly nosed their way from the hospital grounds.

Many early city workers paused in their rush for the tubes and stood in awe. They had heard who was in the ambulance.

Several automobiles followed the ambulance to the city limits.

When the calvacade reached the smooth turnpike it gathered speed. A pace of 30 miles an hour was maintained.

The pace through Newark was not slackened. The automobiles and ambulance took the side streets to avoid the heavy downtown traffic.

The small towns then flew past. Plainfield was reached at 9:55 and then the ambulance turned into the last lap.

Orrville Man Wins State Senate Race By 68-vote Margin

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 18.—A. H. Etling, Orville, was elected state senator from the combined 17, 18, 19 and 28 districts over A. L. Fair, of Millersburg, in the November 2 election, according to complete and final tabulations of the votes cast made at the secretary of state's office today. His majority was 68 votes. Etling received 31,553 and Fair 31,485. Both are Democrats. Walter G. Nickels, New Philadelphia, Republican, was the other senator elected from the district.

12 MEN SEEK COUNCIL PLACE

Solons Will Name Edgar Heddleston's Successor Tonight.

Twelve hats may be thrown in the ring for the second ward council place left vacant by the resignation of Edgar Heddleston, Ravine street, when members of the municipal legislative body meet tonight to select a successor.

Among the aspirants are H. S. Lindell, secretary-treasurer of The Winland Brothers Lumber company; ex-Councilmen James Larcombe and George Smith and W. H. Kelly, Walnut street grocer; John McConnell, Avondale street potter, and Ross Dorff, potter of Ephraim street.

Four are necessary to elect. Three solons, it is reported, are pledged to support certain candidates on the first ballot.

Heddleston's resignation was accepted two weeks ago.

White Sulphur Springs and Atlantic City would be notified of her majesty's indisposition.

The queen only a few days ago eliminated her proposed trip to North Carolina and Florida upon receipts of a message from King Ferdinand pleading with her to "come home before Christmas."

Frequent published stories that the king was suffering from cancer have alarmed her majesty.

The queen cabled to Roumania asking for full particulars regarding the true physical condition of the king. The reply, unrevealed in detail, led to the sudden decision of her majesty that she must return home.

Tells Sad News in Indianapolis.

With a tremble in her voice, Queen Marie told the guests at the Columbia club in Indianapolis that she had heard "unfortunate news that has made her very sad."

"I feel that this may be my farewell talk to the American people," Queen Marie said. "I have heard a most distressing piece of news. I am so full of emotion that I can hardly speak coherently. I deeply regret that my trip in your beautiful country is to be terminated so suddenly. I want to tell the Americans how much I love to be with them and appreciate their hospitality. I always want them to remember me. I do not know whether I will be able to come back to America but I hope and hope that I may."

Princess is Unnerved.

Another worry which weighed on the mind of Queen Marie was the physical condition of Princess Ileana.

Still unnerved from a close escape from serious injury when the roadster she was driving collided with a heavy motor truck in the road from Chicago to Indianapolis, the pretty princess was confined to bed today with a trained nurse in attendance.

FIVE ARE ILL AFTER EATING "POISON MEAL"

FIEND SOUGHT

Police Await State Experts' Analyzation of Food.

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Professor Henry Meyer of Wellesley college, his wife, and three children were battling for their lives today as police waited at the state house for experts to analyze parts of a "poison meal" and furnish a clue to the trail of a fiend, who, authorities are convinced, attempted a wholesale poisoning.

Something that each member of the family ate for breakfast yesterday contained the poison that so nearly carried death with it.

Today Professor Meyer groaned from his sick bed that he knew of no enemy who would attempt so monstrous a crime.

Mrs. Meyer prepared the breakfast, the maid being away. She served orange juice, cooked cereal, scrambled eggs, toast and coffee. Parts of each of these dishes today were under the microscope at the state health department.

Vancleve Meyer, 9, and Antoinette, 10, were at school and the professor was enroute to Boston when the members of the family were seized with a deadly nausea. Answering a call from Antoinette's school, Mrs. Meyer was attacked enroute and could hardly guide the automobile. Mrs. Meyer collapsed when Vancleve staggered in to be followed by the father. Only Vancleve was able to crawl to the telephone and summon aid.

"But —He Felt No Better For That"

A man from Nebraska tells this: "For three nights I was kept awake by a bothersome persistent cough, and so were others of the family; and I felt no better for that. The very first doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved me and in two days' time my cough was entirely gone." Think of the saving of distress to himself and others, had he taken Foley's Honey and Tar Compound at the start. It pays to keep it on hand. The large family size is a real economical buy. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

It is said that the potentalities of the wood-pulp industry in Alaska are tremendous.

BAD COLD? TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS TONIGHT

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

New Zealand High Commissioner Balks On American Films

LONDON.—"I regret that 85 per cent of New Zealand's automobiles come from the United States,' says Sir James Parr, new High Commissioner for New Zealand to Great Britain.

"I regret to see all this money going into the pockets of the foreigner—money which should go into British pockets."

Parr was appealing for trade within the British Empire, coupled with a demand for subsidies that would check outside competition. He was particularly emphatic against the use of American films in New Zealand.

"We have pictures in every New Zealand township," he said, "but what do the people think when they see these American pictures? Ninety-five per cent of the pictures shown in New Zealand are from America. Do you want to see us Americanized?"

CRIPPLED BY PAINFUL SWELLING IN HIS LEG

As he came in from work in the evening, a garage worker of Shreveport, La., felt a pain in his left leg above the ankle, and the next morning it was badly swollen and worried him when walking.

"I applied Sloan's Liniment to it that night," he writes, "and the pain nearly all left. I applied it again and the next day the swelling was all gone. For all aches and pains I find nothing to beat Sloan's Liniment. I keep a bottle in the garage where I work."

Sloan's gets results because it stirs up the body's own powers to heal itself. Just pat it on, and at once you can feel the fresh blood tingling through the sick tissues. Inflammation, swelling, stiffness, pain, begin to give way at once.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

NICK SCACCUTO IS HELD FOR KENNEY DEATH

He and Another Man are Grand Jury Hold-overs.

27 COUNTS TRIED

But One Not Guilty Verdict Returned by Jurors.

Out of the 27 indictments returned by the September grand jury, against 21 persons, all cases have been tried and disposed of with the exception of two, including Nick Scaccuto, of Wellsville, who is a prisoner in the county jail at Lisbon on a charge of murder in the connection with the death of Patrolman James Kenney.

The other case involves Arch Barnett, against whom two indictments were returned, one for malicious damage to property and another for placing dynamite.

Scaccuto, as well as Barnett, has entered a plea of not guilty. Scaccuto was the first arrest of importance made following the slaying of Patrolman Kenney last May. He was found six hours or more after the slaying in a house near Central park with bullet wounds in his body. Since his arrest half a dozen others were taken in connection with the crime, all of whom are out of jail, either on bond or as a result of dismissal of charges against them.

In a single case of trial by jury there was a verdict of not guilty returned, this in the action against John DeSarra, of Wellsville, indicted for obtaining insurance money by false pretense. DeSarra was freed yesterday morning.

In all other cases, pleas of guilty or verdicts of guilty have been obtained by Prosecutor Brookes.

Because of the non-appearance of an important witness for the state, the Barnett case was not called for trial yesterday, although a bench warrant was issued for the arrest of the witness. Jurors, who remained within call during the day, were excused at 4 o'clock.

Dominic Andretta alone was given a suspended sentence. Andretta entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery and was fined $100 and costs and committed to the county jail for 10 days. Andretta was permitted to go home on account of sickness. A few days later the court suspended the jail sentence but the fine stood.

Majority of those indicted were young men, most of whom were sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory, while a few went to the penitentiary.

PERHAPS a way to spend the $250,000,000 could be found, better than giving it back. Part of that money would put this nation's fighting air fleet ahead of all others. At present, we have none.

MUCH could be done with all or part of $250,000,000, more romantic and exciting than giving it back.

But nothing, probably, could be done that would suit better those that will get the money.

ONCE the Greeks of ancient days voted on this proposition: "Shall a very large sum be divided among the free citizens of Athens, or shall the money be used for the national defense?"

MUSSOLINI, as is usual with one-man power, now combats treachery in his own ranks, as well as conspiracy at home and abroad.

A high fascist official, close to the king who "reigns" under Mussolini's sheltering hand, is moved from his important position.

Should Mussolini become suspicious of the royal family, that might necessitate another usual step in the course of dictatorship, and put Mussolini on the throne.

Cromwell kept away from it, and his power lasted until long after he died. It might have been better for his family and England had he gone the whole way from "Lord Protector" to "king by the grace of God."

Salineville Church To Launch Revival Services on Sunday

Special evangelistic services will begin in the Church of Christ on Sunday evening, Nov. 21, conducted by the minister, Rev. A. M. Jenkins. Girl Couldn't Sleep On Left Side

"I had gas on the stomach so bad that I couldn't lie on my left side, and could not walk two blocks without resting. I have taken only half a bottle of Adlerika and am much better already."—Lillie Lamar.

Because Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, it gives the system a REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In East Liverpool at the Economy Drug Store and other druggists.

Grandmother's

Old Stone Cookie Jar

Tested Recipes by
Winifred S. Carter

ONE of the things you love to remember is your childhood visits to Grandmother's old stone cookie jar.

I don't believe you ever were disappointed, for although Grandmother had to stand and roll and cut cookies she always found time to do it.

Today we have an easier, quicker way to make cookies than Grandmother had. The cookies for which recipes are printed below call for no rolling and cutting. I am sure they will gladden the heart of any child.

Save these recipes. When you see how quick and easy it is to make them you will not let your children grow up without Mother's wholesome Crisco Cookies to remember and tell their children about.

W. S. C.

Nut Wafer Cookies

Sliced instead of rolled and cut. Use Crisco and see how easy it is to cream with sugar. Crisco keeps so long you can double this recipe and keep the rolls in the ice box a long time, slicing and baking as you need them. Grease your pans with Crisco and you won't need to wash them between bakings.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
1½ cups melted Crisco
1 teaspoon salt
5 cups pastry flour, sifted twice
3 eggs, well beaten
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon or other spices
1 cup chopped nuts (blanched almonds are best)

Cream Crisco with sugar. Add eggs slowly, mixing thoroughly. Add nuts. Then dry ingredients sifted together twice. Shape into roll about 2½ to 3 inches in diameter. Put in Criscoed pan in ice box overnight. When ready to bake, slice and bake in hot oven (425° F.). Makes about 75 cookies.

Grandmother's Old Fashioned Ginger Cookies

Made the new easy way—no tiresome rolling or cutting. Crisco is always ready for instant use and is easy to cream with the brown sugar. Grease your pans with Crisco and drop the cookies far enough apart to keep them round. Crisco saves washing the pans between bakings, so you won't mind using a lot of them.

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup molasses
½ cup Crisco
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk
4½ cups pastry flour

Cream Crisco, sugar and salt together. Add molasses and ginger, then egg. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Add, mix thoroughly. Last add flour. Drop teaspoonfuls of the batter on a Criscoed baking pan and bake in a medium oven (375° F.). Makes about 50 cookies.

PENN HIGHWAY TO BE IMPROVED

Work is Scheduled to Begin on 12 Mile Stretch Next Spring.

Weirton and Holliday's Cove will be connected up with good roads to other communities before another year passes, according to highway projects now under construction and contemplated for next spring.

Announcement has been made that the 12 mile stretch of the William Penn highway, known for many years as the Steubenville pike, will probably be improved by the Pennsylvania state highway department during the next year. This road is almost direct from Steubenville through Weirton and Holliday's Cove to Pittsburgh, but is almost impassable during rainy weather.

West Virginia is building a boulevard from Weirton to the Washington county line. Allegheny county is completing the portion of the highway within her boundaries to the Washington county line. Through Washington county, however, the road does not pass through any large towns and for that reason no appropriation could be secured from the county for the work. There has been an effort to interest the state highway department in the road project for the past year. Final assurance that the state will undertake to build that section is of great interest to this section, as the road when once completed will be of national importance. It is understood that the western end, beyond Steubenville will eventually be completed by the state of Ohio to connect with the National Road at Cambridge.

Although delayed by rainy weather the paving of the Weirton Hill road from the general office of the Weirton Steel company to a point several hundred feet east of the intersection with the old King's creek pike is going ahead steadily and is expected to be completed about December 1.

The road is being sub-graded, cement is being poured, bricks are being laid and the road is being widened by berms. The road when completed will be 24 feet wide on the straight stretches and 30 feet wide on the turns. The contractor, Fred Robinson of New Cumberland, is taking advantage of every hour of good weather and has been working his men on Sunday when possible in order to expedite the work. About 1500 feet of concrete remain to be poured

Why We Become Weak, Run-Down It Glands Fail

THOUSANDS drag through life always tired and worn-out, suffering with loss of energy and vitality, and fail to recognize the cause of their trouble. Medical authorities now know the trouble as "asthenia," and claim it is caused by an unbalanced glandular system or weakened glands.

Glands exert a remarkable influence on health, strength and vitality. When the glands function normally they supply their vitalizing hormones (or secretions) which are essential to physical well-being. And when the glands fail to function, health fails.

Now, glandular treatment, which is endorsed by eminent scientists and physicians of this country and Europe, is being used by thousands of men and women to help overcome a weakened, worn-out, run-down, exhausted condition, and to retain the strength, vigor and vitality that are the natural benefits resulting from a normal glandular system.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen is prepared in convenient tablet form, for both men and women. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

The petition declares he was unable to follow his business for 40 weeks. The petition was filed by Attorney Frank H. Hoover of East Liverpool.

RECORD NUMBER OF CASES FILED

At the rate new actions are being filed in common pleas court, it is the opinion of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine that the current month will establish a new high record since he assumed office last year.

Since Nov. 1st up to the close of business Wednesday evening 70 new actions had been placed on the appearance docket. Should this ratio be maintained during the balance of the month, it is believed that more than 100 cases will have been made a matter of record. About one third of the actions so far filed are petitions in divorce. Not in several years have 100 cases been filed within a single month.

SUPPORT ORDER ISSUED BY COURT

Although an action in divorce is pending in common pleas court against him, Samuel C. Myler was taken before Judge Lodge Riddle yesterday and given a hearing on a charge of non support preferred against him by his wife, Gladys M. Myler. Myler was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Kindsvatter. After he pleaded guilty, he arranged to post a bond of $300 that he would pay his wife $6 every week, payments to be made every other week for the support of his minor child. A workhouse sentence was suspended by the court.

Released from Jail.

O. C. Jenkins who has been confined in the county jail in default of $300 fine and costs assessed in a liquor charge against him has been paroled upon the recommendation of the committing court.

Steve Skossuss of Salem, who has also been in the county jail in default of a $300 liquor fine has also been paroled, and he also was released from custody Wednesday afternoon.

Property Sales Ordered.

In two actions pending in common pleas court against George Little, the court has rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiffs, and an order of appraisement and sale of property has been decreed in both suits.

James S. Rinehart and others was given a judgment for $70.66 and costs against the defendant, while the Moore Furniture Co., Inc., was given a judgment for $60.18 and costs. The actions have been pending since March 1924.

Sciatic-Neuritis

The disease is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain. The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, all pain and soreness. Continue until the Neuritis has entirely disappeared and you are able to work and rest in comfort once again. J. D. Holloway keeps Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 in stock all the time and sells lots of it.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, C. G. Anderson and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic cases of Piles are often entirely absorbed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Mathews Medicine Store, J. D. Holloway, Herche's Drug Store sells lots of it.

Rickard and Fugazy War For Control of Championship Bouts

Tunney May Desert Tex For Scrap With Sharkey Or Delaney

Latter Pair is Bound to Fugazy, Former by Preference and the Latter by Contract; Maloney and Persson Lined up on Other Side.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Gene Tunney, miffed in his best ball room manner over "certain features" in connection with Tex Rickard's promotion of the recent unpleasantness in Philadelphia, may desert the czar in favor of the crown prince, nee Humbert J. Fugazy, it was learned on excellent authority today.

Under Fugazy's auspices, Tunney's opponent would be either Jack Sharkey, who exposed the colored gentleman in the wood pile, or Jack Delaney, (light heavyweight champion) and the bout, if held will take place at the polo grounds during the latex summer months.

Meantime, Delaney and Sharkey may meet for the right to challenge for the title. Both are bound to Fugazy, the former by preference and the latter by contract, expiring February 1.

Frame Fight Plans.

Within the last twenty-four hours, Tunney and Fugazy have conferred on the matter and a second and final meeting is due on November 30. A definite proposition will be made to Tunney then and, if Rickard can't better it, Tunney will go over to the other camp. It is said that Tunney has been impressed by a statement from Fugazy that a lease on the polo grounds is as good as his.

These are the latest developments in the Rickard versus Fugazy war for the control of championship matches.

Sharkey, Delaney and Harry Wills are with Fugazy. Rickard has Jimmy Maloney and Harry Persson while Paul Berlenbach and Tunney are on the fence, ready to go the way the cat jumps.

From a lieutenant of Tunney's it was learned today that the champion's grievances against Rickard are "unimportant" and that Gene feels quite friendly toward the promoter. He, however, is not disposed to let friendship interfere with business and, if Fugazy can show him more money with Delaney or Sharkey than Rickard can with Persson or Maloney or Joe Windmill, the champion won't hesitate a split-second by his handsome wrist watch.

Nothing Against Tex.

Tunney declined to comment on his grievances growing out of the Dempsey match beyond saying that he still considered himself obligated to Rickard, but not to the extent of accepting the worst of two offers.

"I'd be a dolt if I didn't listen to all proposals," he said in a flow of $10 words. "I've really nothing against Rickard at all and, if he makes the best offer, I'll be glad to fight under his direction. But Fugazy has proved himself an upright, reputable promoter and most certainly I will give his offer every consideration. I will be able to tell you better just what that offer is after November 30."

ALL-AMERICAN GRID CANDIDATES

By Norman C. Brown.

Early in the season "Babe" Connaughton, of Georgetown University, drew attention because of his huge bulk. He's the biggest player in collegiate football. But right now he draws the limelight because of his playing, which demands consideration of his case in naming any All-American grid team.

DIEHL

HARRY CONNAUGHTON

This giant guard is amazingly fast for his size and gets down under punts like an end. He has a habit of breaking through the opposing line and dropping the backs in their tracks. He paved the way for a Georgetown touchdown against Syracuse by beating the other players to a fumbled ball in the third period. He is given credit for holding the Pittsburg ball carriers in three attempts of that team to put over a touchdown from the one-yard line.

Bucknell, coached by the wizard, Charles Moran, usually presents one or two possibilities for All-American team consideration and this year one of its outstanding stars is "Wally" Diehl, backfield luminary.

Bucknell has enjoyed a rather hectic season, victories over George Washington and Lehigh (impressive ones) being intermingled with defeats at the hands of the Haskell Indians and Villanova. But Diehl has played a prominent part in the success the team has enjoyed. He is a triple threat man and an unusually brilliant passer.

BOOK WOODLAWN FOOTBALL SQUAD

The Liberty Billiards football squad is shaping up its forces for the game with the Olympic A. C., of Woodlawn, Pa., which will be staged Sunday at Sherwood, beginning at 3 o'clock.

The Libertys will be strengthened by the addition of several new players to fill the holes caused by injuries in last Sunday's game with Leetonia, which the locals lost, 54 to 7.

An ancient principle in China is that each family shall bear the responsibility for the acts of any of its members.

LIBERTYS COP DUCKPIN TILT

A slight change in the schedule was made to permit the playing of league games this week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Next week, matches will be played Monday, Tuesday and Friday and that schedule will be followed the remainder of the season.

Approximately $150 in cash prizes will be handed out at the close of the campaign while loop performers will be eligible also for the Thanksgiving turkey to be given away at the alleys for high score. Bill Welch has the edge in this race at the present with a mark of 219.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

In adopting the principle of keeping the club in front of you in the back swing the player must keep in mind one thing: The wrists must not be permitted too much freedom with the club while it is being swept back. The club should have just the least trace of drag up to the point where the arms go on up with it. And even then the wrists must not be allowed to "break" the club over quickly and sharply. The club should continue its "drag" feeling until it goes over at the top, at which time, of course, it can drag no longer. Here, however, it should take up all the slack in the wrists—that is, draw them up against the natural pull of the club when it gets to its stopping place at the top. If the wrist are permitted to break sharply in the back swing they will miss this "taking up of the slack" at the top. Either way will work, but the way I have described gives the best results.

U. S. TO REFUND $350,000,000 TO TAXPAYERS

Will be Distributed March 15 and June 15.

BUSINESS BOOM

Expected to Stimulate Government Revenue Next Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Unless government finances undergo an unexpected upset in the next six weeks, the treasury will be prepared to hand back to federal taxpayers close to $350,000,000 as a credit against taxes payable March 15 and June 15, it was learned today. This is an increase of $100,000,000 over the original Mellon estimate.

Government economic experts declared that the tax refund, which will chiefly benefit large taxpayers and corporations, coupled with the apparently certainty of a permanent reduction of rates by the 70th congress, will have a favorable reaction on general business next year. This will still further stimulate government revenue during the year beginning July 1, 1927.

Treasury officials, on the basis of a close calculation of government revenue made since the president announced the credit policy, estimate collections of income and profits taxes at approximately $2,300,000,000 for the calendar year 1926. This exceeds the estimate by $300,000,000.

Secretary of the treasury Mellon has already announced that the government can stand a credit-refund of fifteen per cent of the 1926 collection. On the basis of heavier receipts it is now possible that the rate may be boosted still higher.

The first American fraternity of which there is any record was the "Flat Hat Club" that appeared at the College of William and Mary in 1750, and continued in existence until after 1772.

MURPHY WINS BY 17,258 IN CONGRESS RACE

J. F. Nolan, Democrat, Polls 19,341 Votes.

OFFICIAL REPORT

Tabulation in Contest for State Senator Also Announced.

Official majority of Congressman Frank Murphy, Republican, of Steubenville, over his Democratic opponent, Attorney John F. Nolan, a fellow townsman, in the contest for congressman, was 17,258, according to figures announced today.

Five counties making up the district gave the Republican nominee 36,599 votes against 19,341 votes cast for Nolan, who made the race on a "wet" platform. The official vote was delayed by the failure of the Harrison county election board to certify it returns.

In the race for state senator in the 20th-22nd district, Attorney Harry M. Carpenter, Steubenville, Republican candidate for re-election polled 50,193 votes; Earl Lewis, St. Clairsville, also Republican, 26,793, and G. J. Barrett, Bellaire, Democrat, 16,947 votes.

Seats for Riviera Tennis Tournament Not in Big Demand

NICE, France.—Seats in the Center Court at the Riviera Tennis Tournaments this season will not be as hard to obtain as they were last season, according to promoters.

Last year Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills were attractions that filled the stands to capacity but this year organizers are worried as to whether they will be able to pay expenses.

"Didi" Viasto, second French tennis "ace," will probably be conspicuous by her absence as well as Senorita de Alvarez, the Spanish star. Mlle. Contastavlos, who has always given Didi a close battle for second honors is also out of this year's matches.

Since Suzanne has turned professional the promoters hope that some interest in tennis will be shown this year as a new French champion is in order to take the place of the now dethroned Lenglen.

Numerous dark horses are rumored to be entered in the fifteen tournaments scheduled in and around Nice this winter.

DO CHRISTMAS MAILING EARLY, M'CLURE URGES

Postmaster Reminds That Yuletide is Five Weeks Away.

PREPAY POSTAGE

Pack all Articles Carefully in Strong Containers.

This was the advice given today by Postmaster J. Edwin McClure, who reminded postal patrons that the yuletide is a little more than five weeks away.

Christmas mail, according to the statement, is fraught with a sentimental value. To give its full measure of happiness and cheer it should be carefully prepared and reach the addresses in time to be in keeping with the purpose for which it is sent. To this end the co-operation of mailers is necessary.

"Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address or box or rural route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and Wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong, durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label or indorsement reading: Contents: Merchandise. Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary, together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled or indorsed in printing are subject to postage at the letter rate.

"Limit of Weight and Size—Parcels may not exceed 84 inches in length and girth combined nor weigh more than 70 pounds if for delivery within the first, second, or third zone, or 50 pounds in any other zone.

"Permissible Additions and Inclosures—Percel may be marked, Do not open until Christmas,' this being permitted in order to encourage early mailing.

"Written greetings such as Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, With best wishes, and names, numbers, or symbols for the purpose of description may be inclosed with third or fourth class (parcel-post' mail Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage.

"Do not inclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcels to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first-class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third or fourth class rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels.

"Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

"Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured.

"Where to Mail Parcels—Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations."

BEBE DANIELS' IN "FLIRT" ROLE

Although Bebe Daniels' latest comedy, "The Campus Flirt," which comes to the Ceramic today for a three-day run, was made in California, it's really a Texas "native son" picture. Three of the company's most prominent members first saw the light of day in the Lone Star state. Dallas contributed three and Houston one.

Dainty Bebe Daniels, Paramount star—has the best part of her career, that of a spoiled, pampered child of wealth who attempts to reign as queen at a democratic American college by using upstage methods—was born in Dallas.

Charlie Paddock, in motion pictures for the first time, cast as the "world's fastest human," also lays claim to Dallas as his home town. Then there's James Hall, fresh from the New York stage, still flushed with success in musical comedy. He plays opposite Miss Daniels as the campus hero. Hall calls Dallas the place of his birth.

El Brendel is the third featured member of the cast.

All exteriors for the comedy were made on the University of California campus under Director Clarence Badger's eagle eye.

KEEP COUGHS OUT OF "DANGER ZONE"

Coughing irritates the throat and makes you cough more. The more you cough, the harder it is to stop. And a cough threatens serious trouble if you let inflammation get into your bronchial tubes. It may spread into the "danger zone"—for these tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops coughs quickly — almost instantly in spasmodic attacks. And it does far more; it brings lasting relief as its soothing, healing powers are absorbed deep down into the bronchial tubes, penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

With the first swallow of Cherry Pectoral you feel its comforting warmth as it loosens up the tightness of congestion. It stimulates expectoration—Natures helpful plan for getting rid of phlegm and germs. Absorbed into the membranes themselves, this concentrated, hospital-proved medicine not only stops your cough but corrects the cause. And that is why relief is immediate and lasting.

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—60c; twice as much, $1.00. 4a2c
